News Briefs

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

ABERDEEN, Wash., Jan. 2.—Peacock split, a point of land at the mouth of the Columbia, valuable to fish packing companies, is gradually being washed away. The land pays $36,000 annually to the state through rental by packing companies.

The point is the grave of several wrecked steamers, among them the Laurel and the Admiral Benson.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 2.—Adoption of a model driver's license law, already in effect in 12 states, has been recommended for Washington during the coming year.

Twenty-seven other states will face similar proposals for the passage or standardization of the law during 1931.

GOLD BEACH, Jan. 2.—The claims of the Curry County Indian tribe's association before Congress for compensation declared the heirs of the original Curry Indians on unfilled Indian treaties with the government, will be processed. It was decided at the recent conference of the association here. It was decided to send a delegation of two to Washington to aid the attorneys handling the claims in efforts to bring about a settlement.

MARSHFIELD, Jan. 2.—Four acres of land in the vicinity of Geisel monument, on the Roosevelt coast highway near Wedderburn, in Curry county, has been acquired by the state highway commission in keeping with its policy of acquiring points of historical interest. It was announced here. The land was donated to the state by estate to be set aside as a park known as Geisel park, to commemorate the Geisel family, father and son being killed by Indians in the early Curry county days.

That metal's just as good today—So Lindbergh found in Paris today; In every land he's tried it out. And still the people cheer and shout. Just simple clinging to the good. By all mankind is understood; 'Mong every race where he has flown All men have claimed him for their own.

WEST COAST LUMBER SALES DROP 25 PER CENT DURING YEAR 1930

Mills Prepare for Shutdowns During Early Part of 1931. But Expect Business Revival in Spring—Activity of Russian Industry Menacing Export Market.

(West Coast Lumbermen's Association)

Manufacturers of Douglas fir, western hemlock, western red cedar and Sitka spruce in the territory along the west coast of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia sold approximately 25 per cent less lumber in 1930 than during the previous year. The percentage of decline was practically identical in the foreign as in the domestic markets. Europe being the only major market area where important increases occurred.

As 1930 closes, the west coast lumber industry is preparing for a winter of protracted shutdowns with consequent extremely low production. For the entire year the industry averaged 54 per cent. It is expected to average not more than 30 per cent from December 15 to February 1. Since summer, or for at least six months the lumber industry of this region has been operating at a loss of from two to three dollars per thousand board feet. As the total production for the region has been approximately 3,000,000,000 board feet in the past six months, the aggregate loss at two dollars per thousand would be $6,000,000. Average mill prices on all items in December were five dollars per thousand feet below those of a year ago and until they increase to at least slightly above the average cost of production, it is unlikely that lumber cutting in volume will occur in this territory. The present outlook is for very slow production schedules until spring.

Home Building Cheaper

The lumber use outlook for 1931 depends more on a revival in residential construction throughout the United States than on any other one factor, as home building is still the largest single lumber market. Power single homes were built during 1930, than in any year since 1924. The slump in residential construction started in the midsummer of 1928 and the volume has declined ever since. We believe it has reached its bottom and should now, or at least early in the spring, begin to revive. Important reductions in the cost of home building occurred during 1930 and in many localities houses may be built for from 10 to 20 per cent less than in 1929, which should hasten the residential construction movement and give it strength when it starts.

Another movement, the penetration of western woods into new market areas throughout the United States, has been going on during the period of retail dealer, distributor and industrial user inventory depletion. Today, Douglas fir, western coast hemlock, western red cedar and Sitka spruce are in common use in thousands of commodities and in scores of industries where they were unknown ten years ago.

Soviet Rivalry Hurts

The outlook for lumber and other west coast forest products in the foreign markets is complicated by the extremely low buying power of practically all countries and the great volume of lumber planned to be sold by Russia throughout the world as part of her five-year economic plan. The American lumberman of the west, paying taxes on his forests, and high wages to his employees, cannot compete in Europe, Africa, South America or Asia, with lumber from Russia

BELANGER TAKES COAST CROWN BY BEATING LOMSKI

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

PORTLAND, Jan. 2.—Charley Belanger, Winnipeg light heavyweight, yesterday won a 10-round decision over Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., in the best exhibition boxing has ever given in Portland. He outboxed and outpointed Lomski. A sharp straight left and a pot-shooting long-range overhead right were constantly in Lomski's face. The latter fought desperately to get in close where he could put into execution one of his famous clipping rights to the body or chin, but Belanger saw to it he never got set for his favorite punch.

By his victory, Belanger was declared the northwest's light heavyweight champion and will be awarded the Portland Boxing Commission's diamond-studded belt.

Jimmy Hansen, Portland's "fighting newboy," added another to his growing list of spectacular knockouts with a 47-second disposal of Ted Evans, Klamath Falls, in the liveliest bout of the afternoon while it lasted. The short stunning right which finished Evans also broke his jaw.

Mickey Dolan and Eddie Volk put on another wild affair. Volk dropped Dolan and knocked him backwards through the ropes with a left within the first ten seconds, but Mickey came back without a count. Eddie had the early rounds by a wide margin, but Mickey settled down and slowed him up in the later rounds. It was declared a draw. Jack Silver and Denny Lenhart went eight rounds to a draw in the semi-windup.

Swede Nelson, Vernonia, took a six-round decision over Red Barber.

A big crowd witnessed the fights, though it was not so hot. Approximately $1500 will be donated to the Waverly baby home building fund.
