INDIAN—Today and Thursday, "Way for a Sailor," with John Gilbert and Wallace Beery; Friday and Saturday, "Billy the Kid," with Johnny Mack Brown, Wallace Beery and Karl Dane; Sunday, Nancy Carroll in "Laughter."

JOHN GILBERT is starred in "Way for a Sailor," the new talking picture which opens today at the Indian theatre, with Wallace Beery in a prominent character part.

This is Gilbert's first picture since "Redemption," and is regarded with particular anticipation because of the virile role he plays as a tramp steamer sailorman, ready for a fight or frolic in any port any time. It is a wide departure from Gilbert's uniform type of part and packs a mighty dramatic wallop as well as gripping romantic interest.

Wallace Beery, whose talkie debut in "The Big House" was an outstanding performance of the season, plays another "light heavy" role as the boy's mate who drinks with Gilbert one minute and fights with him the next.

The story is taken from the two-fisted sea novel by Albert Richard Wetjen, published by the Century company, winning critical acclaim as an unusually human writing with a vivid background of life upon the rolling main.
