

CONTEST FOR BOY SCOUTS STARTS IN DOUGLAS AND COOS

Today is the start of the 1931 achievement round-up contest for the Boy Scouts of Douglas and Coos counties, according to E. A. Britton, scout executive. This is the best contest which has ever been planned for them, Mr. Britton says. It is to run until April 4 and is full of action all the way through.

Former contests were between patrols of from five to eight scouts each. This year is arranged for troops. It is troop competition requiring both patrol and individual effort. Much favorable reaction has already been manifested by both scouts and scoutmasters of the entire council.

Points are given for attendance at every troop meeting on the basis of 200 points for 100 per cent attendance. Points are allowed also for the weekly visit of the troop committee. He earns the troop 200 points.

Each week provides for something different in the program. The special event for the first week is either an all-day or an overnight hike for which points are allowed. Another week will provide for patrol meetings at the home of some members. February 5 marks the 21st anniversary of scouting so each troop that sets up a display in some show window during the first week of the month will receive 1000 points. Then each troop which attends church in a body on Sunday evening, February 8, will receive 2000 points if 100 per cent present. If a scout sermon and the recommitment of the Scout oath are provided an extra 500 points will be given.

The contest provides for competition during troop meetings, passing tests while on hikes, earning awards at court of honor, retaining new scouts, putting on a good invective ceremony during troop meetings, staging a first aid contest within own troop, getting adults out to court of honor (in March only) and, as a final and fitting climax, each troop is urged to hold a "father and son" banquet for which 10,000 points will be given.

Each troop reports to headquarters once each month. These reports are to be kept sealed until the end of the contest at which time a committee will be appointed to open and count points and announce the winners. Each county will have a "first-place" troop. This troop, in turn, will select its most valuable six members who will enjoy a trip to San Francisco as was done two years ago. The boys, of course, have their own spending money and food. The expense of the trip is borne by interested persons and not paid by the scout council.

SEPARATE INCOME RETURNS RULED O. K.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The supreme court today ruled that federal taxes on 1928 income from community property in California can be reported and paid separately by the husband and wife.

The court's ruling today was made in answering question asked by the ninth circuit court of appeals.

In a previous decision, the highest court held that in California the wife, at that time, had only an expectant interest and not a vested right in community property and that the husband must file a return on the entire income from such property.

Since then the state law has been amended.

The supreme court at this term held that under the community property laws of Arizona, Louisiana, Texas, and Washington state separate income tax returns could be filed by husband and wife.

The ruling was made in a case affecting taxes on income of 1928. In its argument, the government contended, however, the ruling would be applicable on all years since 1917.

DAISY-CLARA "MUD SLINGING" HALTED

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—The court, in the person of Superior Judge William Doran, took a pot shot at what it termed "mud-slinging" in the trial of Daisy de Bore on charges of grand theft from her former employer, Clara Bow of the films.

Judge Doran interrupted Nathan Freedman, defense counsel, at the outset of his cross-examination of Miss de Bore, who was asked to divulge her "revelations of intimate details of Miss Bow's life."

"The purpose of the trial is to ascertain the truth as speedily and expeditiously as possible," he said.

"The defendant in this case is charged with grand theft and has pleaded not guilty. The issue here is clear-cut. The question is: Did she steal this money? I have in mind that this issue should not be met by generalities and indirections, but by specified proofs."

The evidence introduced in the defense, he said, should have some definite probative value.

"Reading the accounts of this trial in the newspapers," he added, "the public might be well in doubt as to who is on trial."
