POET'S CORNER

AFTER THE HOLLOW-DAYS

By VERN TAPP
When vacation days are over
We begin our work anew,
After days of fireside gathering
When the hollow-days are through.

Still the fog hangs 'neath the mountain
And the dew is on the grass,
As the workmen climb the hillside
Where the road leads through the pass.

Clear and mellow ring the hammers
Softly sing the whining saws,
Deep and long from falling timber
Echo sounds that morning draws.

Men with picks and men with shovels,
Some with hammers drilling stone,
Some with axes clear the passage.

Where the underbrush has grown,
We are builders of the highways
Tolling 'till the sky turns gray,
Moving earth beside the river
On the rugged right-of-way.

When the golden sun has fallen
And the tools are laid aside,
In the dreams of evening slumber
Hollow-days have never died.

"THE VOICE IN THE BELL"

By G. M. LEPPER
There hangs an old bell
High up in a lofty tower,
Where it did always ring—
Ding-ding-ding.

Dark and long hours—
Dong-dong-dong.
The keeper gray and old
The rope he scarce could hold
But he rang that midnight hour
Using all his strength and power
It still can hear it ring
Ding-ding-ding.

As the hours crept along
Dong-dong-dong.
The cold wind moaned above
With no hint of warmth or love
His head was gray and old
His hands—stiff with cold
Unless some angel bring
Jing-ding-ding.

He could not last for long
Dong-dong-dong.
Then a message seemed to tell
Like a voice in the bell
As though some one did bring
An angel down to sing—
Ding-ding-ding.

Then there came the angel's song
Dong-dong-dong.
From the old tower above
In an earnest plea for love.

Surely there is something wrong
The bell is wavering in its song
Just a faint distant ding—
Then still a fainter dong.
We had learned to love that bell
As it sang to us so well
Ding-dong-ding-dong
But they now shall sleep together
With the old man and his song.

NEUTRALITY BILL OFFERED IN HOUSE

equipment inapplicable to American countries warring with non-American nations.

Food and medical supplies would be expected in a section giving the president the right to proclaim embargoes on articles and materials used for war purposes, over and above the ordinary war-time trade with belligerent countries.

McReynolds said that in this respect his bill would differ slightly from one to be submitted to the senate by Senator Pittman (D., Nev.), chairman of the foreign relations committee.

payment plan. Awaiting what President Roosevelt would have to say this evening, many of the legislators obviously were ready to go to the mat over whether the neutrality policy should be made mandatory by congress and whether or how to redress the veterans' compensation certificates.

Under the bill introduced by Chairman McReynolds of the house foreign affairs committee, the president could have discretion as to embargoes on war materials but would be required to embargo actual war implements. Financial transactions with belligerent governments would be barred.

BONUS OPPOSED

The chamber of commerce of the United States opened up against the compromise bonus bill, contending it would cost $1,277,000,000 more than congress originally intended. House members back of it went ahead just the same.

Deep and prolonged disputes appeared inevitable on both questions, this being a presidential election year.

Cloakroom talk was quite as much about the supreme court and AAA. None gained that, if the farm agency follows the way of NRA, the political future would be vitally affected.

Although the Roosevelt message tonight was expected to give his legislative program in broad outline, leaders inclined to place more importance on his budget to be forwarded Monday.

Some republicans still frothed over the evening session, terming it "bottles" to get a big radio audience. Democrats replied the public had a right to have the president talk at a time when most could hear.

Representative-elect Verner W. Main, Michigan republican, recently elected on a Townsend old age pension plan platform, was introduced to Representative McGroarty (D., Calif.). The latter last year introduced the legislation seeking to pay persons over 60, $200 a month. They smiled broadly and chatted a moment.

LIQUOR PRICES TO DROP FEBRUARY 1

PORTLAND, Jan. 2.—(AP)—The Oregon liquor control commission announced today February 1 has been set as the date for reduction of prices on Canadian, Scotch and Irish whiskeys sold by its stores and agencies.

The reduction, averaging about fifty cents a fifth, follows the recent Canadian reciprocal trade agreement. The treaty provides for reduction of the tariff charge on four-year old Canadian whiskeys and all imported Scotch and Irish whiskeys of from $2.50 to $5 a gallon.

The new low price already is in effect in Washington. The delay in reducing the Oregon price until next month is reported due to the desire of the commission not to upset present inventories.

BORAH QUOTED ON TOWNSEND PLAN

In the article he quoted a "government official" as saying the country must look for centralization of leadership in the presidency, not in congress or the supreme court.

He identified the official, in response to questions, as Blackwell.

"Mussolini never stated the doctrine of fascism with greater boldness or greater clarity than it is here stated," Borah said in his article. "Centralization of leadership! We have a practical and impressive illustration of that now!"

"Individual leadership has its place," he said, "but there is a higher leadership to which all individual leadership must be subordinated, and that is the leadership which comes from the combined heart and brain, and from the conscience and the soul of millions of intelligent and patriotic people."

THIRD PARTY LAUNCHING READY, TOWNSEND STATES

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 3.—(AP)—A national third party, dedicated to his old age pension plan, was envisioned by Dr. Francis E. Townsend today, if democratic and republican leaders turn him down.

The gray-haired physician, getting his bags packed to leave for Washington Sunday, said he would take "no equivocal answers" when he questions "recognized leaders" of the two major parties next week on the proposed $200 a month pension to all persons over 60.

"We are prepared to launch a third party with a week's notice," he declared. "All we have to do is press a button and machinery would be started throughout the country. We find everywhere that people are entirely fed up with the old party idea."

"We'll probably hold our national convention after the old parties finish theirs."

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—(AP)—Representative Celler (D., N. Y.) announced today he had challenged Dr. F. E. Townsend, author of the old age revolving pension plan, to a debate to be broadcast over a national chain (NBC).

Celler said the debate undoubtedly would "bring to the surface the inherent evils of this plan."

ROSEBURG SEWER PROJECT REVIVED

the grant. A resolution was prepared and adopted, asking for a loan of $80,000 and a grant of $20,000. It being estimated that $10,000 will be required to pay construction costs and engineering charges if the work is done under the PWA.

Members of the council, however, were unanimous in the opinion that the job can be handled for around $75,000 if the city can proceed on an independent basis.

It was pointed out that contractors had stated they could submit much lower bids if not bound by the labor restrictions of the PWA.

fact that the city proposes to finance the work through self-liquidating bonds, rather than by general obligation bonds. The self-liquidating bonds would be retired by a service fee to be imposed upon all connections to the sewer system, the fees to be on a minimum of $6 per year under the original plan. In the event, however, it is necessary to increase the amount to $10,000 it will force an increase in the minimum fee to $7.

Revenue figures compiled by the PWA from data furnished by the city, show that the schedule previously adopted would lack $11,250 of meeting bond retirement over a 20-year period, while a minimum fee of $7 would leave a surplus of $18,360.

Under the original plan, the PWA would accept the bonds as security on the loan, but if the city operates independent of the federal government, it will be necessary to sell the bonds on the open market.

To Quiz Bond Market.

Mayor Clark reported that he had received some assurance that the bonds could be sold. He appointed the ways and means committee to contact banks and bond houses and learn whether it will be possible for the city to dispose of the bonds through sale.

While the cost to the city, it was pointed out, will be about the same whether the work is done independent of the federal government or through the PWA, the independent operation of the project would eliminate dangers of long delays and expensive red tape when dealings are held with federal agencies. It would also eliminate danger of having work halted midway by a possible change in administrative policy.

Another proposal under investigation is to build the disposal plant as a PWA project and construct the sewer line as a WPA job.

In the latter case the city would endeavor to sell enough of the bonds on the open market to finance the cost of materials for the sewer line and would receive from the WPA a donation of all labor. A loan and grant would then be obtained to finance the disposal plant, upon which materials form the major estimated cost.

Proved best by two generations of mothers.
