POET'S CORNER

The following poem was printed in the December number of Our Dumb Animals, Boston, Mass. THE DANCING POODLE

He's just a little poodle dog In ruffled pantaloons, And people laugh to see him prance To loudly jangled tunes.

But in his mournful eyes of brown I read another tale— Of all the weary dogs that dance Along the sawdust trail.

And while the people laugh and stare, He's still a faithful little fellow; He dances, though his heart may break— This canine Pachelbello. —Marjorie Hunt Pettit.
