AT CAMP BRADFORD

Thirty-eight men from Camp Wheeler, near Medford, have been transferred to Camp Bradford. Camp Wheeler has been evacuated but is to be reconstructed by a company from the 7th corps area. Civilian conservation corps workers are finding CCC recommendations an aid in finding permanent employment. Two Camp Bradford men seeking jobs in Portland were selected from a large group of applicants when they presented recommendations given them by Dan K. Flouman, project superintendent at Bradford. E. H. McDaniel, senior forester of Portland, and Robert Mercer and R. E. Carlson of the Umpqua forest, were visitors at Camp Bradford this week. A Handman club has been organized at Bradford, being made up of members of craft classes. Through the craft program it is hoped that many men will find definite trades to be of help to them in civilian employment after leaving camp. Instruction is now being given in wood carving, lathe work, general carpenter repair, cabinet work, toy making, tin-smithing, metal work, leather tooling, airplane model building, photography, bead work and hobbies. The pre-Christmas period was given over to gift making and more than 50 gifts were completed. The members secure their wood from the forests, reduce the logs to planks, and the planks to finished products. There is but little machinery, making it necessary to do almost all of the work by hand. The crafts are under the supervision of R. E. Clee, WPA instructor, formerly director in rehabilitation work with veterans under the National War Work council.

GUNTER C/C CREW TO BE SENT HOME

Approximately 100 men, now employed in Gunter CCC camp, will leave for their homes Saturday and Sunday, according to E. H. Crosby, superintendent, who spent last night in Roseburg. The Gunter company is composed entirely of Oregon men, who are being discharged at the expiration of their enlistment period. Superintendent Crosby has been here said.

transferred to Camp McKinley and is moving to that post with his wife and daughter.

Add WPA projects: Curing a 22-year-old St. Paul, Minn., girl of using baby talk. M. H. Alexander, director of a WPA speech correction class with 66 students, said she told him her parents encouraged her to talk that way and it became a habit. "She presents the most difficult case of the class," she said.

When only 12 men showed up at the organization meeting of the Cheerio club, for lonely widows and widowers of Chicago's suburban Oak Park, the 100 women present were naturally a little disappointed. But what made them really gloomy was finding out that Justin K. Orvis, whom they elected club president, was married and had two children. "I wanted to help those lonely people find companionship," he explained. "I saw my duty and I did it."

CHAMBER WORK IN 1935 REVIEWED BY SECY. HARDING

retary says, "yet we only received this sum by repeatedly contacting the 'powers that be'."

He urges that monthly trips be made by chamber of commerce representatives and county court members to the meetings of the state highway commission as experience, he says, shows that contacts are essential to secure road appropriations.

The report deals at some length with the situation regarding the North Umpqua road.

The report in listing 1935 activities points to cooperation with various agencies, resulting in the expenditure of large sums of money on various projects. The county planning board is complimented upon its work and further cooperation of the chamber of commerce pledged.

Among the activities listed, in which the chamber acted alone or in cooperation with other organizations, are the following: Construction of a recreation building at the veterans' facility here, securing of four state conventions for 1936, various WPA projects, and to CCC camps, cooperation with the city council in numerous projects, inauguration of efforts to secure lower water rates for irrigation purposes, support for a bill closing all Oregon streams except the Columbia to commercial fishing, cooperation in a project to oil the Dixonville-Glide road, and a suggestion for rerouting trucks and buses through the city.

Many other activities are listed in the report, and numerous recommendations made.

A total of 215 meetings were held throughout the year, the secretary reports.

Attention is called to efforts being made to acquire O. and C. and privately owned lands by the federal government, and it is pointed out that tax equities are seriously involved. Residents of Douglas

OREGON EVENTS FLASHED FROM WIRE SERVICE

PENDELTON, Ore., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Thomas Reed, 82, died last night an hour after he was struck by an automobile driven by William Meiners, Umatilla county commissioner. Meiners, who estimated he was traveling at 15 miles an hour, said Reed stepped in front of the car just as Meiners' machine was passing a parked auto.

NORTH BEND, Ore., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Coos county ministers in session here decided to start a concerted campaign against all forms of gambling in this area. The ministerial association also passed a resolution commending officers and the grand jury for anti-vice activity.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The city of Portland hit the mark with legal shafts and raked in a $100 fine from A. F. Winter, dart game operator.

He filed notice of appeal from the conviction by a jury of four women and two men, and the fine imposed by Municipal Judge Donald E. Long.

SALEM, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Oregon will be represented by ten delegates at the North American wild life conference at Washington February 3 to 7, Governor Martin announced here today.

The session, he pointed out, would affect Oregon perhaps more than any other state. He was working with the state game commission in selecting the representatives. The governor, invited to attend, said it would be impossible for him to go.

Lying unclaimed with the U. S. treasury, Washington, D. C., are $17,000 due employes in the Mare island navy yard for overtime between March 21, 1878, and September 22, 1882.

EDUCATION FIRST OF ALL, BEARD SAYS

Clyde Beard, principal of the Roseburg senior high school, addressed the Roseburg Rotary club noon luncheon yesterday on the subject "The greatest thing on earth." Citing many things that are great, the speaker drew the conclusion that the greatest thing on earth is the education and proper rearing of boys and girls. He urged adults to conduct themselves so that the boys and girls would have confidence in our government and in the future. The United States is the only country on earth, Mr. Beard said, which has universal free education complete through high school.

Frank Zarembo of Glemboke, Poland, who says he is 118 years old, does all kinds of farm work, has never been ill, and doesn't use a walking stick.
