Today's Pattern

FREQUENT CHANGE OF BLOUSE GIVES WARDROBE ENDLESS VARIETY

by Anne Adams

PATTERNS 2650 AND 2531 Do you have silk suit or extra skirt? An accompanying blouse-a-day is not an expensive matter, and what a lot of variety a few well-chosen styles can give! You're sure to triumph in pattern 2650—an adorably feminine model whose off-shoulder yoke, gathered bodice and short, full sleeves make it a winner for every woman. Make it of satin, if you're out for something dressy. For that slightly more tailored style, make pattern 2531 in necktie silk print; its pert upstanding collar and bowtie worn to advantage with suit or skirt.

Pattern 2650 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 21 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c.

Pattern 2531 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 21 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Anne Adams pattern, THIRTY CENTS (30c) for both. Write plainly name, address and style number, STATE SIZE. Be sure to order OUR SPRING PATTERN BOOK for smart new clothes that'll fit you and your needs to a "T"! Gay, practical frocks to cheer you at work. Lovely party frocks and sports clothes to flatter you at play. Collars, blouses, skirts for multiplying costumes. Chic stenderizing styles. Patterns for each fabric and accessories. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND A PATTERN TOGETHER, TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Address orders to News-Review Pattern Dept., Roseburg, Ore.

ALFALFA BILL TAKES RAP AT NEW DEAL

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 21. (AP)—"Alfalfa Bill" Murray, Oklahoma's ex-governor, turned Yashua creek farmer, advocated today a "redistribution of common sense among the people and statesmanship among the congressmen." "When this happens," he added, "it's going to sweep the 'new deal' business out of the picture." "The constitution is plenty big enough to remedy every evil. Real statesmanship will stay within the constitution."

NOTED INDIAN CHIEF JOINS HIS FATHERS

BLANDING, Utah, Jan. 21. (AP)—Paddy, chief of the Allan canyon Pute tribe, has gone to the happy hunting ground of all good Indians.

The venerable old chief died of pneumonia after a brief illness. He served his tribe as leader since 1928.

In government records, Paddy was registered as John Eyoethoo. He never took part in aggression against the early white settlers. Peace always was foremost in his mind, his followers say.

But Paddy was as brave as he was good. In his youth, tribal historians declare, the Indian was called upon to display his courage.

After the death of his father, his cousin, Grasshopper, stole Paddy's horses. Paddy tracked the horses and recovered them. He proposed to his cousin that they forget the episode and be friends. Grasshopper took this for a sign of weakness and stole the horses again.

Again Paddy followed. This time a desperate hand to hand fight was necessary to regain his property. Again Paddy proffered peace.

Grasshopper stole the horses a third time. A bitter quarrel ensued, the very roots of the youths' tribal custom prohibited interference. One day Paddy returned to his wickup. Grasshopper never was seen again.

Paddy's exact age was unknown, but older Indians said he first saw a white man when about seven years old.

shores. But the great roaring river in winter I love a thousand times more.

MY UMPQUA RIVER

By VERN TAPP

There is a river, seaward bound, With timbered mountain walls; Torrental forced by winter rains, It's rapid current falls.

The fertile pastures skirt its banks. Beneath the steep inclines Where ridges mark the high divides Along its winding lines.

The vagrant ripples rise and fall, Rebounding, splashing spray, Submerging, wearing white-washed rocks Where circling eddies play.

The music in those dancing waves, The fire-light in that foam, Resonates through the Douglas firs My Umpqua and my home.

The following poem appeared in the January number of The American Author. It was awarded first prize in a contest conducted by that magazine.

MEMORY

He sits in silence, thinking of the days When he was younger; through the drifting haze He sees his mother bend above his bed, The candle light a halo round her head.

He sees the sweetheart of his ardent youth, Her eyes reflecting love and faith and truth, Again he sees her—cold as winter snow— Upon her bosom one pure waxen rose.

He holds his first-born in his trembling arms; He leads his daughter, with her elfin charms, Along dim by-ways; and again he sees The amber sunlight filter through the trees.

Age is his partner; now his step grows slow— And still he lingers in the long ago. He takes no notice of the grayning night; In memory he finds unfading light.

—Marjorie Hunt Pettit.

VOT CAN I DID?

Yumplin' jimminy vot can I did? Dey tax mine cow, dey tax mine pig, Dey tax mine farm, dey tax mine car, Aye pay der tax ven I buy me cigar.

But ven mine dog dey say pay tax; Aye yust grab me oop der axe And aye take der dog behind der barn.

Aye sure hane made, oh, gosh, got darn. Aye yust sock mine dog on top of head And now mine poor dog he hane dead.

Yumplin' jimminy, vot can I did?

—Marjorie Hunt Pettit.

A wee, small stream was the Umpqua. When hot summer suns beamed down. But now it's a wide, raging river, Madly roaring through town. It's muddy and laden with driftage. Carried down stream from the hills. It's savage and threatens destruction. It gives even the grown-ups thrills. I love the calm Umpqua in summer. When plenies are held on its
