Pain and Dread of Having Teeth Filled Banished by Discovery of Desensitizer

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor) NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Attentive dentists suspected that tooth pain when Dr. Leroy L. Hartman of Columbia university made his first public demonstration of his new pain-killer for use in filling teeth.

He had been called in to the university dental clinic because a small girl refused to let a student dentist continue. She was crying with pain. These at the clinic did not know he had a new desensitizing mixture.

They scarcely noticed as he placed a drop of a mixture of thymol, alcohol and ether in the cavity. Thymol and alcohol are a common antiseptic in dental use. They did not get the significance of the pause of a minute after Dr. Hartman had applied the pain-killer.

After that moment, Dr. Hartman motioned the student to continue his work. The child did not move an eyelash. She felt no more pain. At first onlookers thought she had been hypnotized.

In about 500 trials of the pain-killer made before giving the formula to the dental profession at a meeting of 2900 cheering dentists here, there were many similar experiences.

Anesthetizes Dentine—The Hartman desensitizer does not mean, and was not intended to mean, that there is never to be any more pain in dental work. It is intended to relieve a specific pain.

There is good reason to believe that the pain relieved includes much of the misery dental patients dread.

Dr. Hartman's desensitizer anesthetizes the dentine, the hard ivory substance lying beneath the enamel, and composing most of the solid substance in which drilling has to be done. The structure of the tooth is first the outer enamel, second dentine which is most of its internal substance and third, deep in the center the pulp cavity, where the nerve lies.

Most fillings and drilling never penetrate to the pulp cavity. The Hartman desensitizer is not intended for use there, as far as now known, only without dentine or it is based on a theory of Dr. Hartman's, which differed from the general belief that pain of drilling was due to pressure of the dentine on the nerve in the pulp cavity.

It Costs Little—Dr. Hartman believed that the dentine itself was sensitive. The five hundred cases seem to prove him right. His difficulty was not to find a pain-killer but one which was harmless and would last.

This he accomplished by mixing ether and alcohol with thymol. The latter combines with fatty substances in the dentine to make a seal for the ether and alcohol. This anesthetic is cheap, a few cents an application. It was given to the dental profession without any of the other restrictions. It burns if it touches the flesh.

Doubters have claimed it would destroy the nerve. The Columbia experiments include filling teeth with its aid, and four months later taking out the fillings and examining the nerve. In one year's time no killing of nerves or other bad effects have been found.

Action in Old Cavity—It does not kill the dentine pain until it comes in contact with live tooth tissue. Thus when placed in the decay of a new cavity of short duration it is likely to kill the drill pain immediately. Because it still can contact live tissues.

But in an old cavity it may not relieve the pain until the decay is cut through. For old decay acts like a carbonizing surface over the live dentine. It does not work in a cavity containing any moisture. When it was announced 2,000 dentists in New York bought out the available drug store supplies.

Some of them were given old thymol, impure ether and impure alcohol. These mixtures were reported to have failed.

Some patients say the difference is that without the desensitizer the drill feels like cutting marble—with the pain-killer, it feels like cutting chalk.

Widow of Composer MacDowell, at 82, Struggles to Save Famous Colony

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(AP)—At 82 Mrs. Edward MacDowell has given herself wholly to an ideal—to save the famous colony at Peterboro, N. H., named for her husband, where artists, writers and musicians go each year for creative work.

It is not the first time she has submerged herself for a cause. She was a promising concert pianist when she married the American composer.

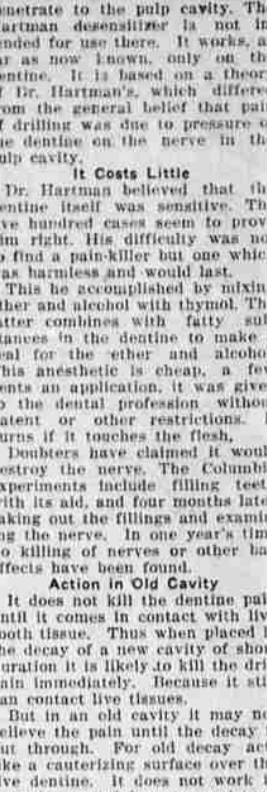

"I gave up my playing," she says, "because his talent was more important than mine, and I became, instead, an excellent cook."

She smiles an old-fashioned smile in her room at a little mid-town hotel which has hardly felt the march of the years since 1906. The room, too, with its curtains and antimacassars and bric-a-brac, provides an old-fashioned frame for this little, white-haired woman with her hair done up as it must have been a quarter of a century ago, who speaks in quiet, gentle tones, and who tries desperately, valiantly to efface herself from the project she is outlining—and fails.

Procession of Talent—After 25 years of seeing a steady procession of talent of young Guggenheim fellowship holders and older Pulitzer prize winners, she fears the colony may have to shut down.

Last fall she returned to the concert stage to play her late husband's compositions—and to talk about the colony.
