

BACKERS ELATED BY TVA DECISION

Reduction of Utility Rates Everywhere, Service to All Farms Foreseen.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—While President Roosevelt will field comment, friends of the TVA in the administration and congress hailed today's supreme court decision. Edward Foley, Jr., chief PWA counsel, said it removed any danger of a successful legal attack on other federal power projects. Power developments financed with PWA funds and carried out by the reclamation bureau and army engineers include Boulder Dam, on the Colorado river, Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams, on the Columbia river, and Fort Peck on the Missouri. Expansion of plans for power distribution from these projects now is expected. The right of PWA to provide funds for municipal power plants, however, has been challenged in more than 50 suits. A "test case," involving a PWA allotment to Hominy, Oklahoma, probably will be carried to the supreme court. Like the TVA, other federal projects involved sale of power generated in connection with irrigation, flood control, or improving navigation. "The ruling," Foley said, "upholds the right of the government to improve streams for navigation, flood control, and to sell the power they create by water storage." Comment included: Attorney General Cummings: "The decision supports the constitutional base upon which the government rested its case, and the result is highly gratifying." Rate Cuts Foreseen Representative Rankin (D-Miss.)—co-author with Senator Norris of the law: "We may now move forward with our program to reduce electric light and power rates to the present consumers, and to electrify every farm home in America." Senator Norris (D-Neb.)—opponent of the law in the senate: "I'm delighted. I'd have been heartbroken if the decision had gone the other way. It ought to help my rural electrification bill." This measure, authorizing a billion dollar appropriation at the rate of $100,000,000 a year for ten years to expand rural electrification, was approved by the senate agriculture committee last week. Senator Byrnes (D-S.C.) said the decision "knocks sky-high suits that have been brought to prevent the government from lending money to states for construction of power plants which would be served by federal projects."
