

LEAGUE OF OREGON CITIES WILL MEET

Annual Conference Set at Eugene This Week Will Discuss Problems.

Miners and geologists, civic officials, chamber of commerce executives, and citizens interested in community, recreation, social security, rural land zoning, governmental structure and stream purification will gather from all parts of the state next Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the annual commonwealth conference at the University of Oregon. A number of city officials and other residents of Roseburg are expected to be present.

Conference program officials have tuned the session this year strictly with the times. Special emphasis will be placed on topics to be taken up for the first time, such as social security as practiced at present, land zoning and governmental structure. Special speakers, all experts in their fields, have been obtained for these and other group sessions.

Although eight separate groups will be in session during the three days, many meetings have been combined, and the general public may attend any of the sessions, it is announced. All sessions will meet at the opening luncheon Thursday, when Governor Martin will deliver the address. The dinner meeting of the League of Oregon Cities, to be held Thursday evening, is also open to the public and will have as speaker Dr. Frederick M. Hunter, chancellor of higher education.

All attending the sessions and others interested may also attend the conference luncheon on Friday and the dinner Friday evening. The broader aspects of the social security program will be taken up at the dinner event.

To Discuss Mining

The mining and geology section, which will have its first meeting Thursday afternoon, is expected to draw several hundred miners and others interested in this industry. The first topic will be "What a Bureau of Mining and Geology Should Do for the Miners," while Friday the topic, "Research and Service Functions of a Bureau" will be discussed. A business meeting will be held Saturday morning.

A plan for a statewide recreation organization will be presented at the conference on recreation, which will be led by Dr. John F. Boyard, dean of the school of physical education as chairman. Others who will take part in this session include Frank B. Bennett, superintendent of schools, Tillamook; Mrs. William Keltzer, president of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers; Dr. Emory Ashbury, principal of Galt high school, Tacoma; Roben Munske, director of adult education for Oregon and Kenneth Beach, supervisor of adult education and recreation.

Other Topics Listed

Administration of unemployed compensation, federal aid in the welfare section of the social security act and other topics will be taken up in the social security section. A round table discussion, with C. A. Bigelow, Multnomah county commissioner, as chairman, will be a feature of this section. County judges who will take part in discussions include Judge Earl B. Day, Medford; Judge Guy Boyington, Astoria; Judge F. L. Phipps, The Dalles; Judge Donald J. Templeton, Hillsboro and Judge Fred Flak, Eugene.

The legal problems of land zoning will occupy much of the attention of the group that will meet to study this subject. Zoning laws of other states will be reviewed, while problems in Oregon will also be discussed by experts familiar with conditions in the state.

The section on governmental structure will meet Saturday morning and will take up the problem of governmental reorganization in Oregon. The stream purification section will meet Friday morning and afternoon and take up various problems in this field.

Among the prominent men who will speak at the various sessions will be Mayor Carson of Portland; Major John E. Carroll, congressman of Seattle; E. J. Griffith, administrator of the Works Progress Administration for Oregon; Russell Barthell, executive secretary of the Association of Washington Cities; Jean L. Vincenz, commissioner of Public Works, Fresno, and C. W. Ham, executive director of the American Municipal Association, Chicago.

Bomb-Proof Ships

SUTHERLIN, March 18.—Miss Lucille Hebard returned to her home at Empava Sunday afternoon with her parents, Mrs. Clyde C. Holman of Nonpariel.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith drove to Roseburg on business Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Leas at their home in Oakland Saturday evening.

Two cars collided at Jenkins' corner, just out of Sutherlin, Friday afternoon, doing considerable damage to the cars but injuring no one. The driver of one of the cars, which bore a New York license, took the blame for the mishap and offered to meet the repair expenses of the other car.

Special attention is being called to a mining conference to be held at Eugene Thursday, March 19, in connection with the Commonwealth conference. Governor Martin is to address the mining conference on the subject of the need for a bureau of geology in Oregon. All persons interested in mining are urged by the governor to be present for this meeting to be held at noon Thursday.

POISON SQUIRRELS EARLY IS ADVICE

Farmers are urged to poison digger squirrels as soon as they begin to emerge from winter quarters. States County Agent J. Roland Parker, as one digger squirrel killed during March and April will account for four or five later in the season. Killing off of the digger squirrels before the young are born cuts down materially the number that would otherwise be on hand to destroy crops later in the season.

Digger squirrels take poison grain more readily after just emerging from winter quarters than after crops are up and the food supply is more plentiful. Poison barley prepared by the county agent's office under the supervision of the U. S. biological survey has been found very effective states County Agent Parker and is not picked up by birds as readily as is poisoned wheat and some other rodent poisons often used in eradication of digger squirrels.

Over two tons of poisoned barley is prepared each year by the county agent and distributed through local stores in each community for the convenience of farmers and property owners in fighting the boards of digger squirrels infesting the fence rows and hills. The poison barley is sold at cost and materially reduces the expenditures necessary to control digger squirrels.

A supply of the poison barley is now available or will be available this week in every section of the county at feed and community stores and farmers are requested to use plenty of poison grain early in cost and cut down the digger squirrel population before the breeding season is over.

LOGGERS ARE ROBBED, TOSSED INTO RIVER

PORTLAND, Ore., March 18.—(AP)—A near-fatal assault was added to injury in a $50 robbery here last night. Andrew Maki, 57-year-old logger from Port Ludlow, Wash., told police two bandits relieved him of his cash and tossed him into the Columbia river.

He had a hard time making the Oregon shore a half mile away, he said. He told police the robbers accosted him as he was walking toward Vancouver, Wash., on the Interstate bridge.
