LIGHT CATCHES OF FISH REPORTED

Light catches marked the opening of the fishing season yesterday, although streams were crowded with fishermen. Due to high water in the river, the fishermen chiefly took to the small streams and creeks, and resorted to bait. Cutthroat trout have been taken on flies at Idlewild park on the North Umpqua but the water is now too milky for good fly fishing. Bait fishermen reported catching large sized river trout in the Umpqua, but the number taken was small. Many fishermen were out for chinook salmon, but the fish are said to be in deep water.

and not travelling, so few were caught. It is believed that fishing conditions will improve rapidly with a few days of good weather.
