

Roseburg News-Review

Member of The Associated Press... The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper and to all local news published hereon.

HARRIS ELLSWORTH, Editor... Entered as second class matter May 17, 1920, at the post office at Roseburg, Oregon, under act of March 3, 1879.

Represented by M.C. MOGENSEN & CO., Inc.

San Francisco—220 Bush Street... Los Angeles—133 South Spring Street... Chicago—350 North Michigan Ave... Detroit—221 Stephenson Bldg... New York—21 East 40th Street... Portland—Hedell Bldg.

MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Subscription Rates... Daily, per year by mail... 14.00... Daily, 6 months by mail... 8.00... Daily, 3 months by mail... 4.50... Daily, single month by mail... 1.50... Daily, by carrier per month... .35

Nominate McNary.

IF THERE is a Number 1 man in the United States senate, Oregon's senator Charles L. McNary is that man. Leader of the minority party in the upper house of congress, McNary is an important if not a dominant factor in all conferences on major national affairs.

It happens that the senator comes up for election again this year. Many of his friends make the mistake of assuming that the voters of Oregon would not think of retiring a man of such national importance as Senator McNary. The fact is, voters do queer things.

Those who understand the value to Oregon of Charles L. McNary's presence in the United States senate should get out and work for him these next two weeks. It is dangerous to assume that he will win the nomination hands down. It is true that his opponent in the primaries is not a strong man politically but in these days of upsets nothing should be taken for granted.

The News-Review does not take very much part in primary election battles, holding that the primary is a party affair to be settled by party members. The general election is quite another matter and we shall express our opinions freely then. But when a politically insignificant state like Oregon can produce a man of the calibre of Senator Charles L. McNary, this newspaper does not hesitate to lay aside, so far as its campaign is concerned, its usual primary election policy, and urge the nomination and election of United States Senator Charles L. McNary.

Two Weeks.

THE direct primary system of nominating candidates by parties for participation in the general election has its defects. It permits nominations to be won by determined minorities—often in both parties. It also is meant and fitted for the self-seeker and the self-starter.

There is only one way in which the people as a whole may be protected from the faults and evils of the direct primary system and that is by everyone voting. No nominating system yet devised is wholly satisfactory. The direct primary system idealistically could be the best but it has failed pretty badly—not entirely because of the primary law itself but simply because people stay at home and fail to vote. Determined minorities have controlled Oregon in the past and will control it in the future unless people go to the polls and vote.

Election day is just two weeks away. Friday, May 15th, is the date. Make a mental note now, to day, that you will let nothing interfere with your duty as a citizen—that you will cast your ballot.

REGULAR REHEARSAL HELD BY GLEE CLUB

The Roseburg Men's Glee club held its regular rehearsal last night, and is in full readiness for the annual spring concert to be given at the senior high school auditorium May 11. Ralph Church, director, announced. Under the direction of Mr. Church, the club has prepared a very interesting program, which will feature Miss Vivian Malone, violinist, of Eugene, as guest artist.

WIFE GETS DECREE ON CRUELTY CLAIM

A decree of divorce was granted in the circuit court here today in the case of Mabel E. Tucker against Arthur E. Tucker. The couple was married in Roseburg, March 25, 1921. The plaintiff, represented by Attorney John T. and J. V. Long, charged cruelty.

Daily Devotions

Let us accept this day as a precious opportunity for the centering of our faith, for putting back into its rightful central place that personal commitment to a personal God which gives all of life an ordered program and a larger meaning. May we find help today to put God exactly into the center of our thinking, our feeling, our will, and our activities. Amen.

TWO VIOLATORS OF AUTO LAW JAILED

Lloyd Cole, charged with operating an automobile with illegal headlights, and J. H. Toller, charged with driving an automobile without a driver's license, were fined $10 each in the justice court today, after entering pleas of guilty to the charges. Each lacked money to pay the fine and was committed to the county jail.

NEWLAND TAKES TRAILER AGENCY

J. O. Newland, local automobile dealer, today announced that he has been named local dealer for the Gypsy Caravan company of Los Angeles, manufacturers of a popular type of auto-home trailer. Mr. Newland has received one of the trailers and has placed it on display at his garage.

KRRR PROGRAM (1,500 Kilocycles) SPONSORED BY NEWS-REVIEW

SATURDAY, MAY 2 Morning Hours 6:45—Early Birds 7:00—Alarm Clock Club 7:30—News-Review News Broadcast 7:45—Alarm Clock Club Cont'd 8:30—Devotional 8:45—Satan Music 9:00—Famous Orchestras 9:30—Album of Music 10:00—Open Memory Lane 11:00—Radio Music Store's Music Box Program 11:15—Popular Songs

Afternoon Hours 12:00—Douglas County Creamery Presents Roseburg School Band 12:20—News-Review News Broadcast 12:30—Hansen Chevrolet Co. Variety Program 1:00—Eureka Circus 1:15—Melodies of Dreams 1:30—Victor Young and His Orchestra 2:00—Spanish Mantilla 2:30—Evening Arts 3:00—World Bookman 3:15—Mills Bros 3:30—Storyland 4:00—The Editor Views the News 4:15—Clayton McCoy and His Orchestra 4:30—Close Harmony Four 5:00—Rovano, Operatic Tenor 5:15—Carl's Tavern Variations of Primitives 5:30—The Motor Shop Garage Presents the Hawk and Paul Campbell 6:15—Friendship Circle 6:30—Richard Crooks 7:30—Sign Off

The Station Master, which usually comes on Sunday at 2:30 will be given on Tuesday, at 6:15 over KRRR.

SUNDAY, MAY 3 Morning Hours 6:30—Devotional 8:45—Sacred Selections 9:00—Program dedicated to veterans facility 9:30—Old Time Pleading with Ernie Crane 10:00—Victor Concert Orchestra 10:30—Sunday Morning Concert 11:00—Sunday Request Program

Afternoon Hours 12:00—Rovano Operatic Tenor 12:30—Organ Selections 1:00—Douglas County Creamery presents Max Della and His Salon Orchestra 1:15—Singing Troubadour 1:30—Roseburg Daily presents the Partner Trio 2:00—Selections from The Firefly Tangle McCland Mercer and Ruth Hoover 2:30—Roy Bright and His Holly Wailers 2:45—Golden Voices 3:15—Melrose Young People's Chorus 4:00—The Singing Parson, accompanied by Virginia Grantland 4:30—Victor Salon Orchestra 4:45—Melody Bands 5:00—Music Week Program 5:15—Popular Dance Time 5:30—Sign Off

TOWNSEND CLUBS' DOINGS IN DOUGLAS

REHEARSAL: The Bible Townsend club held its strenuous meeting at the Guild hall Sunday evening. President Stanley Jones and Mrs. J. M. Lawson, secretary, had charge of the meeting. The social committee, consisting of Mrs. Betty Grant, Mrs. Harry Williams and Mrs. Glad McCallan, had prepared the following program: Piano solo, Marie Jo Riddick; tap dance, the Dal and Betty Miller, accompanied by Ed Ball at the motor party solo, Helen Riddick; rifle and harmonica solo, Marvin and Jack Carritt; piano solo, Annie Hart. The club is planning an entertainment and ice cream social to be held at the school gym in the near future.

Theft by Installment

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—Two weeks ago Albert Liebowitz called the police to report that two light shoes were stolen from his display stand. He put the two light shoes on display in the window. Yesterday he called the police again. "Somebody stole the rights."

The Dance of Spring.

© 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved.

"WIFE IN CUSTODY"

By BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPTER XLIV Lester Molyneux had never married. This was the one experience in his life he hadn't had. At forty-nine he still dangled the idea of marriage as a future insurance against boredom in his old age. Not that Lester Molyneux was ever bored. Debonair, cynical, he found life an amusing spectacle and most of the people in it. He had more money than he could ever possibly spend in his lifetime; he had a few friends whom he admired and loved (Dirk Terhune had been one of them). Never handsome, he was more distinguished-looking at forty-nine than he had been at twenty-nine. His thick Auburn hair, graying at the temples, had in his youth been merely a shock of red hair. The years had the same effecting effect on his features and the softening of his manner. Then he had been called volcanic—now he was charming.

Helen, he perceived and appreciated, was a woman whose chief talent was being a charming woman; she had no desire to shine; rather she glowed softly when she was with a man whom she happened to like. He found her selflessness, her adaptability and her real kindness qualities he had sought long and had never heretofore found in the same woman. After three weeks of intensive courtship Lester Molyneux knew that he was wholly and intelligently in love with her.

And suddenly Helen's days were full. The day wasn't long enough. The sparkle returned to her eyes, she still a strain of music, a remembered carousal, an old joke, brought a stab of pain. Most of all she hadn't time for her job. Lester was desperate in his demands on her time. Her lunch hour came at twelve. Just as she was getting ready to meet him, his secretary would phone that Mr. Molyneux would meet her at one for luncheon. Helen, who had been presenting in the washroom under Mrs. Ingalby's own eye, now came back into the office and began to luncheon on her report on the typewriter with two fingers. At quarter of one she went back into the washroom to freshen up again for luncheon.

"At two she'd make a feint to flee." "Lester, do you realize that I'm a working girl?" "Sure, but, you're a social worker!" And Molyneux's laugh boomed so heartily that the other fingers turned around to stare. "I don't think you're nearly so busy as you think you are." "To tell you the truth, I think you're a darling." "I love you." "I want to marry you." "You're no social worker, my darling." "I know it," she admitted in a small voice. "You've been to be a wife, my wife. You're Adam's missing rib. I've missed you all my life. I've found you now and I have in my heart of hearting you. I'm not a young blade any more but I think I can still make you happy. I've loads of money. There's nothing but I can't do for you. I'm being terribly honest with you, Helen. I really love you. For the first time in my life I'm thinking of what I can do for you—not what you can do for me. I can love you—oh very, very satisfactorily." "Isn't she whistled." "Oh, you, Helen." "Oh, don't!"

"Why? Don't you love me?" "No, I'm sorry." "You will," he predicted cheerfully, although he paled slightly. "Perhaps I asked you too soon. But I can wait." "Dinners, theatres, concerts, the opera, exhibitions, teas, Molyneux knew everyone. At opening nights at the theatre, they were always in the party to meet the star or the author of the production. Helen was always so amazed when people rushed over and remembered her. She began to know scores and scores of people. Always meticulous (since her instructions from Terhune had been one of them). Never handsome, he was more distinguished-looking at forty-nine than he had been at twenty-nine. His thick Auburn hair, graying at the temples, had in his youth been merely a shock of red hair. The years had the same effecting effect on his features and the softening of his manner. Then he had been called volcanic—now he was charming.

The Terhunes were delighted at Helen's activities. Helen brought home theatre programs and printed menus and every evening that was given away. In the morning she'd perch on old Mrs. Terhune's bed. Cecily and the children sprang at the foot, while she told them where she'd been and what she'd eaten. They had a lovely time of it until Fredericks came in to fear a reluctant Gracie away to get ready for school. "He loves you, doesn't he, Helen?" "He says he does, Coz." "Marriage?" "Oh, no!" They were in Helen's room. Helen was still in bed, her rumpled ash-blond hair and pink cheeks giving her an almost childlike look. Cecily in red lounging pajamas sat tailor-fashion at the foot. Helen shook her head. "You'd be silly not to marry him, Nellie." Helen started. "Why did you say that?" "I don't know. It just slipped out." "For a moment I thought it was Dirk talking. He always called me that." "Helen, if Dirk were alive, I know he'd advise you to marry Lester. After all, you're so young—the children live him. He'll be a wonderful father to them." Helen sighed. "Yes, he would. But do you think Dirk would have advised me to marry someone I don't love?" "I don't know. Dirk had a practical side too. Lester's awfully rich, Helen." "I don't care about his money, Coz." "He's young, dear, but he's a man. He's offering you love." Cecily's sallow face flushed. "You know better than I do what it means. I only know this, Helen, if I could live my life over again, I'd marry the first man who asked me. Does that sound a short time comparatively? You love me—and I love you." "See, love is like that too, isn't it? My love last only a comparatively short time?" "Then try again," Cecily urged hoarsely. "I always find a new pet when one dies." She rose abruptly and left the room.

Bella said, "Oh, Helen, Gay and I are crazy about him. He's so charming, so noble. You make a marvelous couple. Helen, has he asked you to marry him yet?" "Yes." "Darling!" "But I haven't accepted him." "For heaven's sake, Helen!" "I don't love him, Belle." "Oh, Helen, you've had romantic love. I think you can have such a sensible love affair with Lester." "Would you change your love for Guy for a sensible love affair?" "I do—but I'm not ready to love him or anyone yet." Mr. and Mrs. Terhune said nothing at all to Helen. They merely invited Lester to dinner four times a week, to tea every day that he was free and for Easter week to New Canaan and again over the Fourth of July. Each week he asked her to marry him, and then she sadly refused he said, "I can wait."

PIGGLY WIGGLY

- Saturday and Monday MANNING'S Rich and Refined Lb. 25c 2 Lbs. 49c SUNRISE As Fresh As the Sunrise Pound 24c PEABERRY Full Bodied and Flavoury Pound 20c MYRTLE Mild and Mellow Pound 17c

- SALT Plain Iodized 2-Lb. Carton 7c Arden's—Flows freely. Cocoa 2-Lb. Carton 16c Our Mother's fine cocoa JELLO 2 Pkgs. 11c The spring and summer dessert—All flavors SOUP 2 Cans 11c Gibb's Vegetables—Tomato—Mushroom Waldorf 3 Rolls 13c The nationally advertised sanitary tissue Crystal White 3 Bars 10c When you say Crystal White—Nuff said

- Powdered Sugar 2 1/2 Lbs. 17c WAX PAPER Cut-Rite, 125-ft. Roll with Cutter—heavy waxed for lunches and picnics, Roll 15c Pineapple Fancy Sliced or Crushed—Flat tin, can 9c Calumet Baking Powder 1-Lb. Tin 19c The double acting baking powder—Buy it sealed.

- 10c Fly Swatter Each 6c COCOANUT Shredded—Sweetened 1/2 Pound 10c SCOTT TOWELS 150 to Roll 3 Rolls 29c PEAS All Gold Early Garden No. 1 Tall Can 14c SUNBRITE CLEANSER 2 Cans 9c CHOCOLATE DROPS 1 Pound 12c Shortening Tasteless and Odorless. Ideal for baking and frying. 4 Pounds 47c

FRESH FRUITS & Vegetables

- Lettuce Good Size 2 For 5c Radishes Fresh, Crisp 2 Bunches 5c Tomatoes Red, Ripe, Fancy 3 Lbs. 19c Peas Sweet, Tender 2 Pounds 11c New Potatoes 2 Pounds 9c Cabbage New Crop Pound 1 1/2c Oranges Full of Juice Doz. 15c

MYRTLE CREEK Mrs. Lester, Picked of Roseburg, and her father, R. W. Way, of Medford, were Myrtle Creek visitors, Tuesday, with Mrs. Ted Shurtell, Mrs. R. R. Ayl and Mrs. M. Way. H. M. Shurtell visited to Winchester, May Friday afternoon for a short visit with his brother, E. A. Shurtell and family. He returned Saturday bringing his mother, Mrs. E. T. Shurtell home with him. Large numbers of baby chicks are being raised in this community this year. Miss Grace Stephens, who has been taking treatment in a Kansas City hospital, has returned to her home on Sixth Myrtle creek. Miss Gladys White is assisting with the work at the Shurtell home. Miss Ethel Sellers, who is graduating in June at the S. O. N. S. in Ashland, has been engaged to teach the Normal school for the coming year. Miss Selous is the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Sellers. Miss Gwendolyn Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Weaver, who has been teaching a rural school near Myrtle Point, has been employed to teach again next year at an increased salary. Miss Ada Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Dyer, and Everett

"Clean" on the tongue! ROMA EIGHT-FORTY BRANDY It's superb brandy, you'll agree! Distilled, mated, bottled by America's largest winery—Roma Wine Co., Inc., Lodi, Calif. ENJOY TOO ROMA'S IN SOBER WINE