Million Mark May Be Passed by 4-H Clubs in United States During 1936

WASHINGTON, May 11.—Membership in 4-H clubs, a nationwide institution for the development of youth in rural sections, is expected to pass the million mark in 1936, according to predictions based on steady enrollment gains reported here during the last six months.

Started in 1899 as a branch of the extension service under the United States department of agriculture, the organization has grown steadily until today there are individual clubs in more than 3,900 counties with a total membership of nearly one million.

The four-point purpose of the organization, symbolized in the name, is based on the development of the head, heart, hand and health. The work is supported by federal, state and county funds.

Farming Taught
 In addition to thousands of employees in agricultural extension offices throughout the country, more than 100,000 local volunteer leaders are helping push the work of organization and education.

Keenest interest of club members during the past few years has been in ways to assist in family problems and in projects which promised some financial profit.

In these clubs boys are shown the latest methods for scientific farming and livestock breeding, while girls study home economics. All instruction is supervised by agents employed on a co-operative basis by the department of agriculture and state agricultural organizations.

Projects assigned to the various members are arranged so they do not interfere with school or farm chores. Most of the year is spent in preparing for club competition.

Place Exhibited
 At county and state fairs, boys exhibit what they raise, including beef animals, sheep, poultry, horses, grains and vegetables.

Girls display canned goods and dresses they have designed and made.

Winners of state contests are usually entered in national competition in connection with the International Livestock exposition in Chicago, where national champions are chosen in all departments of 4-H club work, including livestock judging, livestock and crop raising, cooking, baking and dress making.

The club work is under the general direction of C. B. Smith of Montgomery, Md., chief of the division of co-operative extension of the department of agriculture.

just outside the city limits. Harold McCleary, driver, was injured. Mrs. Edw. Jones, 82, died last night from injuries received in an auto accident May 8.

OREGON EVENTS FLASHED FROM WIRE SERVICE

PORTLAND, Ore., May 11.—(AP)—Two wires, joined by wire, reported a 60,000-volt power wire here and disrupted service in a section of the city about 10 minutes. Residents reported a building crash and two small boys running for dear life.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 11.—(AP)—The city council pondered today whether it could afford to accept as a gift a site in the medical center in Sam Jackson park for an isolation hospital.

Dr. K. B. Lulehant, dean of the University of Oregon Medical school, made the offer contingent upon the city's agreeing to spend $100,000 for the erection of the first unit.

MARSHFIELD, Ore., May 11.—(AP)—Kenneth Rhule, 15, employee of the Oregon timber firm, drowned while swimming in upper Coos river near Allegany. The body was recovered.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 11.—(AP)—Traffic crashes took two more lives in the Portland area Sunday.

Miss Rhea Cox, 24, a nurse, died as a result of injuries incurred when a car struck a tree at the intersection of Sandy and Columbia.
