Prune Prices.

THERE is reported to be considerable activity on the part of independent prune packers in an effort to sign up prune purchase contracts with growers. Doubtless a lot of this activity of the past few days resulted from the disclosure made at the recent meeting of the Oregon prune control board in Salem that there may be an actual shortage of prunes this year.

The crop for this year is estimated at 460,000,000 pounds. There is a carry over of 120,000,000 pounds making a total to sell of 580,000,000 pounds. The sales in 1935 amounted to 591,000,000 pounds. Since the sales in 1935 are almost certain to be more than in 1936 because business in general is ahead of 1935, the above figures indicate an actual shortage by the end of this year of more than 11,000,000 pounds of prunes.

Another good reason for the activity of independent prune buyers this week is the fact that the Oregon prune control board is scheduled to meet next Tuesday at which time prune price recommendations will doubtless be made. The independent buyers want, of course, to get under cover with purchases at a low price prior to the time the control board makes a price announcement.

There seems to be no good reason why prune growers should hasten to sell right now. Commodity prices are advancing and there is evidence of a possible shortage of prunes—a condition that has not prevailed in many years. It is only common sense to wait at least until the prune control board has expressed itself regarding the prices for this year's crop before contracting to sell.

PRE-CONVENTION Paragraphs

Now is the time for all good legionnaires to come to the aid of their organization. At least the above is quite in order so far as those who are making arrangements for the convention are concerned. At a meeting of the local post of the American Legion, Tuesday night, a call went out to every legionnaire to give all assistance possible on committee work. There is plenty to be done. Several of the important committees are working short-handed. This will be impossible to correct after the convention gets under way.

According to a letter received from Paul Patterson, state chairman of Junior Legion baseball, Spier Burke and Jude Moreland will be the official umpires of the Junior baseball games during the convention. These fellows are old heads at the game. Burke was for a time arbiter in the Pacific Coast league. He calls them fast and walks away tough. Burke and Moreland are accustomed to working together and we should see some credible umpiring during the big series.

George Amos, chairman of the navy reunion to be held at the Unipqua hotel at nine o'clock Thursday of the convention period, is dashing around making arrangements. He is like a hen with a flock of ducks. More business than a cranberry merchant. George says that a real reunion is in prospect. Every man who has had an enlistment or has served any time at all in either the navy or marine corps will be welcome. Jack Hamilton of the Unipqua is handling the ticket sale for the event. It will be "Anchors Aweigh" and all the trimmings when these ex-gobs get together. It will be the first all state reunion held in Oregon. Tickets will sell for thirty-five cents. Douglas county men are particularly invited.

The town is becoming full of fly-by-night hawkers who have everything for sale one could imagine. The Legion is cooperating with the merchants of the town in attempting to discourage transient hawkers. Legitimate Legion representatives will carry identification. People soliciting the city for sales of anything connected with the convention should be asked to present their credentials. If they cannot produce them they are in no way connected with the convention activities. Call headquarters. We will do the rest.

Talk about your spirit of cooperation. Give the Hansen Motor company a hand. A report at the regular Legion meeting Tuesday night disclosed that Hansen has completely overhauled his public address system and is making it available to the Legion during the convention. This will be a lifesaver in getting out announcements of the time and place of different events. The Hansen car will be on the streets and available at all times. A few more breaks like this and the convention will be an assured success.

Doc Scofield dropped into the office today and announced that Roseburg fans will have an opportunity to get their voices in good condition before the convention. Doc says the Eagle baseball team, which is composed mostly of ex-Legion players, will cross bats with the Medford team, also composed principally of ex-Legion players, on Finlay field next Sunday. Doc is a real booster for baseball and has done a lot to keep the sport alive in Roseburg.

The Medford team is coached by John Miljus, ex-Coast league and big league pitcher. Miljus was known as the only Armenian n organized baseball. Something like that at any rate. If you wish to see a well-coached, hard-hitting, fighting organization of baseball players don't overlook this game Sunday. Miljus spends most of his time in the first base coaching box, and what he says to those players of his is plenty. Medford has trimmed the Eagles twice so far this year and the local lads are out for revenge. Scofield says Medford is in line for a licking.

COUGHLIN POSTS WAGER ON LEMKE

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin said today he was forwarding to Frederick L. Jenckes of Providence, R. I., acknowledgement of Jenckes' acceptance of an offer to wager on the vote polling chances of Rep. William Lemke, union party candidate for president, and Gov. Alf M. Landon, the republican nominee.

Mr. Coughlin would wager $25,000 to Jenckes' $16,666.66 on a three-to-two basis, accepting the terms, the priest betting on Lemke. In a telegram to Father Coughlin, Jenckes said that "according to press reports, you offered to bet $25,000, giving odds of three-to-two, that Lemke would poll more votes than Landon in the November election."

"Your telegram received," the priest wrote Jenckes. "As you know, the people of Rhode Island who attended the mass meeting last Sunday agreed to subscribe $25,000 for the purpose of wagering that William Lemke will poll more votes in Rhode Island than will Alfred Landon at the presidential election November 3, 1936."

"Relying upon the vocal agreement made by 25,000 people, I hereby accept your offer with the provision that should the members of the national union win the wager, the gain therefrom should be expended upon the orphan children of Rhode Island."

ONTARIO MAY GET ARMY MANEUVERS

ONTARIO, Ore., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Ontario's airport may become a base for army maneuvers, two officers who were here this week, Lieutenant J. A. Philpott and Lieutenant Timmer, said today. They declared it one of the best under investigation, with a 4000-foot runway capable of handling the largest planes in use.

STORE WILL RADIO CONVENTION NEWS

Fisher's department store has made arrangements with the American Legion convention commission and with radio station KRNR to broadcast daily at 7 p. m., authentic news of convention events. The broadcast will be made by Walter Fisher, who will personally compile and present the information with the cooperation of William H. Baizinger, convention secretary. No broadcast in this series is scheduled for Sunday. Mr. Fisher stated today, but the weekly broadcasts will begin Friday evening at 7 and continue daily until the Saturday night of the convention.

GRASS FIRE PERILS FARM BUILDINGS

A grass and brush fire sweeping over the Charles Miles farm at Kelley's Corner threatened the residence, barn and other buildings for a short time last night. A large crew of volunteer fire fighters succeeded in turning the flames from the buildings before any material damage was done.

RELIEF-POLITICAL LINK IS CHARGED

Blister rust infection was recently found on sugar pine in northern California and southern Oregon by J. L. Mielke and W. W. Wagners of the division of forest pathology, bureau of plant industry, U. S. department of agriculture. This is the first known occurrence of the disease in California. However, the relative susceptibility of sugar pine had been studied previously by planting young trees in infected areas of British Columbia and northwestern Oregon where it was found that the sugar pine is more susceptible to attack than either western white pine or the western American white pines which are especially valuable as forest trees.

Blister rust, a fatal disease of white pines, became established in the Pacific northwest as a result of diseased white pine planting stock introduced from Europe and planted near Vancouver, B. C., in 1910. Its presence in western Washington was first discovered in 1921. Since then it has spread through natural means into the commercial western white pine belt in eastern Washington, northern Idaho and western Montana. It has gradually extended southward toward the sugar pine belt of southern Oregon and northern California.

During the past several years infection on currant and gooseberry plants, the alternate hosts of the rust, has been found at several points within the sugar pine belt of Oregon and rust outbreaks already have appeared on the sugar pine in Oregon.

Control plans have been developed by the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine and control work aimed at safeguarding the highly valuable sugar pine stands is already well under way. At the close of the 1935 field season about 375,000 acres of sugar pine forest land had been treated by the removal of the currant and gooseberry plants from within and near the pine stands. Approximately 2,500 workers, financed on emergency funds, are at work on the blister rust control in California and Oregon this season.

SUSTAINED YIELD OF TIMBER URGED

PORTLAND, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A sustained yield basis of forest development will insure a permanent living for nearly a million people in Oregon and Washington, Earl W. Tinker, Washington, assistant chief of the U. S. forest service, said today.

Tinker, here on an inspection trip, said there are 59,000,000 acres of forest land in the two states which is chiefly valuable for growing timber and if properly cut "it can continue indefinitely to supply timber industry requirements at the present rate of cutting."

The forest service cannot meet the problem alone, he pointed out, because about half the remaining timber "and doubtless the best and most accessible of it" is privately owned.

"This means that the tax system in our states must be changed and other economic changes secured which will remove the pressure for immediate timber liquidation," he said. "It means that logged-off land must be better protected from fire, with sufficient reseedling sources left to assure the springing up of new timber crops."

The breaking of the cantaloupe market was attributed directly to the recently declared picking holiday by growers of the Yakima valley.

ROD AND GUN CLUB MEETING DEFERRED

The regular meeting of the Roseburg Rod and Gun club scheduled for Friday night, has been postponed until August 31, it was announced today. Absence of officers and conflicts with other engagements made the postponement necessary.

U. S. POLITICAL OBSERVATIONS

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington.)

It is too early to jump at conclusions, but many of those in the active stream of national politics are wondering whether the present campaign, for all its fury and depth of feeling, ever will produce a genuine "paramount issue."

Certainly there is no sign thus far that any one specific question of national policy is emerging above all others, or is on the way to universal recognition as the hinge on which the election will turn.

The great deceptive campaigns of history have produced such issues, and so have some of the lesser campaigns. Slavery, free silver and other definite topics of dispute have inspired political battles which will live forever. Four years ago an individual—Herbert Hoover—became rather definitely the major issue.

It may be that, before November, Franklin D. Roosevelt will be agreed upon as the paramount issue of 1936. There are those who doubt it seriously, for to a peculiar degree popular opinion often has shown a tendency to distinguish between Mr. Roosevelt and his policies, and to be for one and against the other.

At any rate, no such stage has been reached so far. Nearly all political leaders and commentators state the "paramount issue" differently.

Groups Activity at Peak A highly illuminating observation on this subject was made recently by Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, who predicted that the campaign would be fought out on "a combination of major

Daily Devotions DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

Life takes its toll of all of us, and especially in those difficult and trying days. Often one of our greatest needs is the need for a toning up of our whole nature, physical, mental and spiritual so that we shall be able to maintain a fresh and buoyant and hopeful attitude toward the future with enthusiasm. We constantly need that reinforcement to tone up our aged lives. Our Heavenly Father may we ask Thee, and claim from Thee, that strengthening of spirit and refreshment of soul for which we feel our need from day to day. Amen.

group issues." "No one issue is paramount," said Mr. Vandenberg. "This is an interesting campaign in that it presents a series of major issues, each a personal intense challenge to a group of the electorate." "Reiteration of the word 'group' is significant. There can be no question that group activity, group organization, and group appeal has reached an extraordinary stage. The most intensive efforts are in progress participated in by leaders in all parties, to consolidate the farmers, the laborers, the business, the unemployed, the women, even the young people and the old people, for political action."

Each political camp blames someone else for this situation. Appeals to conservatism are denounced by the opposition as efforts of the upper crust to smother the masses, and appeals to the masses are answered with charges of promoting class hatred.

Whoever is responsible the situation presents, as Grover Cleveland would have said, not a theory, but a condition; and all political managers are forced to recognize it, and deal with it.

Sometimes Embarrasses Such a condition, in which almost every organized group is assumed on general principles to be in politics this year, has had more or less embarrassing consequences in some quarters.

For instance, consider the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It was founded as a business venture purely, and heretofore has kept pretty clear reputation for non-partisanship. One former president of the chamber sits today high in new deal councils. Another is bitterly active against the new deal.

Some time ago, the chamber condemned various new deal policies. Since then, it often has been linked in political utterances with those who are seeking to unhorse Mr. Roosevelt. In that situation, the organization's July statement bailing the advent of a notable business recovery—a perfectly normal and routine thing for the chamber—to do under ordinary circumstances—caused much political remark and speculation.

There is sound reason for believing the July statement was issued advisedly, and with keen appreciation of the "group" repercussions likely to follow.

CRIMINAL ASSAULT BRINGS PEN TERM

PORTLAND, Aug. 6.—(AP)—John Morrow, 26, construction company employe, drew a sentence of 73 days in prison yesterday for a criminal assault upon a Klansman at Falls Falls.

Morrow was sentenced after being convicted late in July in circuit court, where he denied the accusation. The girl testified against him. Previously Morrow had been acquitted of the paternity of a child born at the time of the attack.

The crime was committed during a visit of the girl here.

Coroner William R. Wime said Judge Andrews died of a broken neck in a fall from his bed some time during the night.

Mary Shipman Andrews, who died Sunday night, gained widespread reputation as a writer as the result of "The Perfect Tribute," a story of Abraham Lincoln.
