Period Designs Popular for Summer Formals

June Lang

Claire Trevor

Gloria Stuart

Rochelle Hudson

By JEAN ALLEN

International Illustrated News Writer

HOLLYWOOD—The latest fashion note in the film colony has to do with the popularity of period designs for those graceful summer formals so popular with ladies for evenings at supper clubs or resort dances.

Many of the smartest creations reflect the influence of the Second Empire period as in the charming dance frock modeled above by Claire Trevor.

Slacks are also becoming increasingly popular, so much so, in fact, that they have displaced skirts for many occasions on which such casual attire would have once been thought quite unsuitable. Slacks are now worn even for many evening affairs, around Hollywood hotels and to afternoon affairs.

At the same time, fashion leaders of the film colony are not forgetful of the feminine charm of such an intriguing outfit as that worn by Rochelle Hudson. The skirt is long and full. The bodice is form-fitting with long sleeves and fuschia velvet buttons mark the front closing from collar to hem.

Ribbons Add to Effect

One of the highlights of Miss Hudson's frock is the full, sunburst pleatings around the high neckline and wrists, forming a shoulated peplum. Fuschia colored velvet ribbons add a charming touch to the neck, waist and wrists.

The "Margot" influence invades Hollywood in the beautiful evening gown worn by beautiful June Lang. It is of pale pink moussoline over pink taffeta.

The cape, composed entirely of ruffles, is detachable, and is balanced by a skirt that is very full at the lower edge. A white sash of matching grosgrain ribbon is loosely knotted at the front. A frock of such design is especially suited to one of the height of Miss Lang whose dainty beauty and graceful figure require a judicious setting.

Strawberries are used for fabric ornamentation in the unusual formal favored by Claire Trevor. They are embroidered with the same delicate precision as the metal damasks of past decades. Each is stitched in silver on peau de soie and mark one of the newer style developments.

Using the Second Empire motif, this exquisite lithe dance frock has a double bodice shirred and corded into off-the-shoulder sleeve puffs. The voluminous skirt, with its double corded hem-band, is lined with pale pink taffeta. An old-fashioned flower bouquet in deeper shades of blue and pink forms the coiffure corsage.

And while we are discussing highlights of Hollywood's fashion promenade, it might be well to call attention to the trick chapeau worn by Gloria Stuart. Her attractive bonnet is of black linen straw with flattering nose veil and two feather pompoms in Olivet green. The unusual color combination accompanies a cocktail suit in Olivet crystelle trimmed with silver fox.
