BAD WATER TAKING
BIG TOLL OF DUCKS

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 1.—(AP)—Wild ducks that don't give a darn what they drink are committing suicide by thousands on the Utah, Arizona, Nevada and California desert.

"Each year," Newell B. Cook, Utah game commissioner, said today, "many more ducks die from tainted water than are shot."

"In a bad year more ducks are poisoned than hunters in the area would kill in half a century."

Southward bound, the ducks dip into pools, soon become groggy.

Their necks so limp, their legs become paralyzed and they exhibit all the signs of extreme intoxication—but it's worse than that. It's "duck sickness"—desert dysentery.

"Until you've seen them, lying dead on the Utah salt flats, a feathered body every few feet for miles after mile, you can't realize the seriousness of the situation," said Cook.

"I have pictures of sections within a 10-mile area which must have contained over half a million dead ducks."

The illness is caused by stale water. The birds die in great numbers only when a rainstorm has left tiny pools over the desert area in a recent instance, when wind blows lake water into shallow ponds along shorelines.

Cook said some efforts are made to rescue birds—they recover quickly in fresh water. More effective than "hospital measures," however, has been the stationing of men with shotguns at the principal danger areas to frighten away the tired or thirsty fowl.

"But our funds are limited," he said, "this is a problem of great importance to sportsmen everywhere. We look for greater federal aid in its solution."

Farmer Adam Roth of Fremont, Ohio, like that mythological Greek Lady Circe, has too many hogs on his farm. Roth told Sherliff Tom Pask that the hogs—31 of 'em—had simply "taken up"
