POET'S CORNER

THE SUNNY SOUTH

O yes, I was a "Southern Girl,"
For that I have no shame,
And though I now live in the west
I love the south the same.

I'm going back to "The Sunny South,"
I'm bound I shall not fail;
A wonderful trip I shall have
Along the "Centennial Trail."

To "The Sunny South" I'll go back
To meet my home-folks there,
And we shall have a jolly time
At the big "Centennial Fair."

Form into 12 patties, make a hole in center of each and insert a filled prune. Wrap bacon around patties and pin together with toothpicks. Place in a greased baking pan and bake in a moderate slow oven, 325° F. 1 to 1½ hrs. Serve on broiled tomato slices garnished with mashed potatoes forced through a pastry gun. If tomatoes are not available, they may be omitted, using toast rounds instead and also omitting the potatoes. Serves 6 or 12, depending upon the appetites.
