Oregon Lady Thought She Would Die With Awful Gas Pains—Could Hardly Put on Clothes—Now She Says, "Van-Tage Made a Different Woman Out of Me!"

Mrs. P. E. Stewart, of 2250 N. 4th St., Salem, Ore., is now adding her name to the long list of widely-known people of this vicinity who are publicly praising and endorsing the Amazing New Medicine, Known as VAN-TAGE.

MRS. P. E. STEWART

which is now being introduced to the local public at Fullerton's Rexall Drug Store, 127 N. Jackson St. Just a few days ago, Mrs. Stewart said:

Couldn't Sleep, Due to Gas, Dizzy Spells

"I suffered from awful upset stomach distress and constipation for over five years. Food would sour in my stomach so terribly that I felt I WAS CHOKING all the time! I bloated and puffed all out of shape so that I COULDN'T GET MY CLOTHES ON! I thought I was done for, especially when this gas pressed up around my heart and caused it to palpitate. I had terrible dizzy spells, couldn't sleep, my joints ached badly and I WAS A COMPLETE WRECK! I spent hundreds of dollars on medicines and treatments, but got no real help. Then my mother advised me to take Van-Tage. It has made a DIFFERENT WOMAN out of me! Gas and sour stomach is all gone and I have no more heart palpitations. I am never dizzy any more. Joints do not swell now and my constipation is relieved. I am certainly thankful for what this Great Medicine has done. I hope others will read this and be helped like I have!"

Van-Tage Is Now the Talk of Roseburg

SUFFERERS! This astounding Compound acts as a kidney diuretic, mildly stimulating kidney action, and is helping THOUSANDS in this city and vicinity every week by its action on stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, as a carminative, laxative, cholagogue and diuretic. It is now the Talk of All Roseburg. And due to the immense volume in which it sells, the price of Van-Tage is reasonable. So don't hesitate. Get this Great Medicine TODAY! at Fullerton's Rexall Drug Store, 127 N. Jackson St.—Adv.

Daily Devotions

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

Very much depends upon the spirit in which our work is done and the attitude we carry around with us in regard to it. Live our best and enthusiasm into it. It will react upon us and give us freshness and vigor in return. On the other hand, if we take a spirit of drudgery into our daily work it will spoil the finest task that life can give us. Before we ever start to quarrel with our job or complain against the providence that gave it to us, we ought to consider what changes a different attitude toward it would make. We thank Thee, our God, for something to do and the strength and will to undertake it. Help us to find joy and satisfaction in the things that we do from day to day, because they are a part of Thy plan for us. Amen.

WALLACE DOUGLAS' SON ALSO PASSES

NORTH BEND, Ore., Jan. 8. (AP)—Death struck twice within a week at the pioneer Douglas family here. Wallace L. Douglas, long-time Coos Bay attorney, died last week. Yesterday his son, Wallace U. Douglas, Jr., 25, succumbed to pneumonia. The younger Douglas also attended Coos Bay as a graduate of Willamette university.

FUNDS DIVERSION WARNING VOICED

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 8. (AP)—Henry F. Cabell, chairman of the state highway commission, answered a plea for diversion of highway funds to cities with the statement that road maintenance, administrative costs, matching of federal funds and payment of bonded indebtedness would preclude such diversion in the immediate future.

He also said such a step could not be taken until the current federal road survey is completed and apportionment of funds determined. E. B. Aldrich, Pendleton member of the commission, urged that no action be taken to divert the highway set-up with $2,000,000 in bonded indebtedness still to be considered.

10-POINT PROGRAM OFFERED BY MAY AT CHAMBER BANQUET

and crop laziness; 4. The exploration of our under-the-soil natural resources, such as minerals, oil and water riches; 5. Development of our domestic and foreign markets; 6. Development of our several means of transportation—highways, railways, waterways and airways; 7. Exploitation of our scenic and recreational advantages; 8. Intelligent development of our forest industry; 9. Our industrial awakening; 10. Unification of our people in the greatest of all cooperative movements—namely, state development.

Past Successes Cited
Mr. May touched briefly upon the work of the Portland chamber of commerce in contributions to advertising land settlement and other such activities of statewide importance as well as contributions of other groups for like purposes.

"The success that has accompanied these efforts," he said, "has convinced me that there is a crying need for the establishment of a state confederation of advertising effort on the part of volunteer agencies and a unification of our efforts so that what Portland is doing, which is considerable, and what the Shasta Cascade Wonderland association, the Oregon Coast Highway association, and the Greater Willamette Valley association and the Vale and Owyhee disinterested chamber of commerce are doing may be made a state-wide program in which all the people share. We have reached a place in our state development that calls for a genuine state-wide effort to have an Oregon chamber of commerce, offered by men of the state and managed by a staff that will give the same attention to the state as a whole that we as individual chambers of commerce give to our particular organizations."

Speaking of the importance of development of waterways, the speaker declared that prejudice and local enthusiasm must be subordinated into a program for the good of the state, involving stream purification on the one hand and proper industrial use on the other.

Bonneville Power Needed
"You may feel at first blush," the Portland chamber of commerce manager said, "that Bonneville is not your concern, but I assure you that it is. It is only a coincidence that Portland is the great center upon that river and that we shall share in the great navigation activity and become a greater port because it was built. It is likewise just our fortune that Bonneville as a power project brings to us the great industrial opportunity that we have so long worked for and dreamed of."

"The fact is that more power will be developed at Bonneville, when it is ultimately completed, than is used between the California line and the middle of Washington for all uses at this time. Unless we use some of this power for industry, in large blocks, and utilize the existing transmission lines to reach the people, there can never be an early great benefit to the public at large. The power is in our hands, and the development of the farms and the cities go hand in hand."

Grange Held Mised
"We need above all else to bring together the thinking of the business men, grange leaders and the public on this important issue, so that back at Washington, where regulations and laws must be made to give us this great development, our delegation and federal bodies may know what we want. It is a tragedy that some of our grange leaders, misled by public relations ship superficialities and by falling into the trap of our commercial and industrial adversaries in other sections of the country, should so mistrust the leaders in our chamber of commerce movement as to delay the acquisition for our state of this epoch-making development."

Mr. May touched on problems of flood control, land settlement, soil erosion, mineral surveys, markets and other factors required for state-wide development. "The expansion of our domestic markets," he said, "will come only when we can combine a program of advertising, merchandising and production that takes into account the activities of other states. We shall need stable labor conditions, cooperation of the farm and factory, and legislation and regulatory action that will forever eliminate a shipping trap such as we have had these last three months

"Stone Girl" Happy

Mrs. Iola Swinerton, 33, of Chicago, is shown celebrating the New Year out of the hospital for the first time in ten years. Mrs. Swinerton has been gradually turning to stone since receiving anti-typhoid injections in Florida. Despite her affliction, she greets 1937 with a great big smile.

and for ninety days in 1934." Speaking of transportation, Mr. May said: "Portland through its chamber of commerce is endeavoring to bring all of our people in the north to realize that the greatest concern in highway development should be the improvement and modernization of the Pacific highway, so that easy and fast movement may be had through the state, north and south upon this major artery and east and west upon a new and improving Columbia river highway. We thus far have been able to develop to sponsor and urge other development officially."

Recreation Needs Stressed
"In the exploitation of our scenic and recreational resources, there are a multitude of actions that could be proper to touch upon, but let me cite only one. In Oregon we need to impress upon those administrators charged with operating Crater lake, Mount Hood and other areas within our limits, that in the past years we have been too modest by far in impressing our needs and rights upon congress and those at Washington who spend federal funds to develop several areas, henceforth Crater lake, Mount Hood and our national forests, for which we get relatively little development revenue today, must have the backing of our public to the extent that the services administering them will feel warranted in asking large funds, not only to keep them operating, but to keep them operating and expanding on an ever increasing scale."

Industrial Awakening
In concluding his address Mr. May said: "And now may I touch upon the great industrial awakening that is just ahead for our state. We are getting a great portion of the new commerce from the dust bowl of the middle west. Our tourist advertising is attracting 50 per cent more travelers than last year. Our serious-minded students of taxes and government have made up hypothetical tax cases by which we can show whether a man may retire on a fixed income better in California than he can in Oregon or Washington. We know from these studies that certain types of industry can operate in Oregon as well as they can in California or Washington and we know some of them can do better here. We have an intelligent tax commission in Oregon which at present understands our advantages and presents them, and knows our disadvantages and is seeking to have them corrected. After eighty years of desultory progress, we have brought into reality a program of industrial, agricultural and mineral development. Value for value, Bonneville, the big dam industry on the coast, the development of small crops such as your melons, the development of our livestock center in Oregon and the river operations and Bonneville on the Columbia. Just to mention a few phases of our development, have focused national and international attention upon this state which for many years was unknown, except to a few, as a state of industrial and commercial opportunity. Our chrome deposits are being explored and bought up; our iron ore deposits are again withdrawn from the market; plywood and veneer have opened new vistas for our lumber; our pulp and paper engineers have, with the cooperation of the Portland chamber of commerce, revised our knowledge of pulp wood resources; cautious progress in stream purification to protect wild life and health while advancing industry, is under way.

"No longer do we talk only of roses and the fishermen's paradise. Today the state is beginning to know us as a state and a people, quickening under the warming sun of industrial advance in every section. We have nurtured a few of our industries into fairly prosperous undertakings, with a few indeed offering fabulous opportunities.

Resources Explored
"Our foreign commerce from the ports of Oregon now equal or surpasses the foreign commerce from Puget sound. Even oil prospectors from California and Texas are tapping the subterranean possibilities of eastern and central Oregon. Our lake beds of Malheur county are being explored for brines that can be used in industry. Our sheep are taken to the ranges of Russia and Italy to supply the flocks that will later enter into competition with our wool and mutton. The chrome concentrates from Josephine county are moving to the rustless iron and steel foundries of the Atlantic coast.

"We feel the birth pains of new railroad development, now that railroads are again writing in black ink, and gold dredges and placer miners are capturing the grains of fine gold from our river beds. Oils from our pitchblende are making the varnishes, linoleums and paints of the world, and meal from these same pitchblende is enriching the lands of our forty-eight states.

Unity Put First
"Our manufactured production has leaped again to nearly half a billion dollars annually; our retail trade topped $81,000,000 this last year and our wholesale trade nearly as much. We know from studies by the United States bureau of the census that year by year more business is done throughout the state, while Portland does a less percentage of the state's business. Orderly development is under way in Oregon.

"This state of the commonwealth's affairs brings us to the tenth and final aspect in our development. It is easier said than accomplished. With all this before us, with a knowledge of all the effort of the past that has brought this about, and with the great vista of opportunity that our work has opened for us, I see one final great need in our program. It is a unification of purpose on the part of all the factors in our development."

Directors Elected
The results of the election, which was conducted by mail in advance of last night's meeting, were announced today. The directors being Dr. Clair K. Allen, P. T. Babar, J. F. Dillard, Loring Jordan, H. T. Hansen and Dr. C. U. Wade. The ballot was counted by a committee consisting of Leon A. Clintock, Harrie Booth and M. J. Newland.

Holdover directors are Morris Bowker, George Caskey, Paul Geddes, Chester Morgan, Ivan Pickens and Hugh Ritchie. The old directors and those newly elected will elect the officers to serve during the coming year.

The meeting last night was attended by more than 150 persons. Harris Ellsworth, retiring president, acted as toastmaster. The invocation was given by Rev. Perry Smith and music was furnished during the meal by an orchestra under the leadership of W. E. Ott.

President Ellsworth introduced new state, county and city officers to the audience.

A brief summary of the annual report, printed copies of which were furnished all members, was given by W. C. Harding, secretary. A stunt by the Hill Billy band of the Business and Professional Women's club and music by the Roseburg Men's Glee club provided other entertainment.

SHEEPMEN LOSE HEAVILY BY STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8. (AP)—W. P. Wing, secretary of the California Wool Growers association, estimated today the maritime strike is costing sheepmen the loss of a market for 10,000 lambs a month. The sales to the boat trade and Hawaii have been cut off cleanly by the strike, he said.

Reduction of purchasing power of workers in affected industries has further cut down lamb marketings along the Pacific coast, Wing added.

Wife Braves Icy Umpqua to Aid In Steelhead Catch

Mrs. Dick Baker proved the heroine of a fishing story yesterday. She accompanied her husband, a local automobile salesman, on a business trip to Umpqua, where Dick, an enthusiastic fisherman, could not resist the temptation to cast a fly on the icy waters of the North Umpqua.

Whipping an ice-coated bucktail fly on a line and leader which quickly were covered with ice, Baker succeeded in hooking a seven-pound steelhead.

While he was fighting the fish, the line froze in the guides and he was unable to reel it in. He finally succeeded in dragging the steelhead into the shallow water near the shore and Mrs. Baker waded into the ice cold water and made the capture.

Lack of fall rains has left the water of the North Umpqua clear, and steelhead and trout are still being taken on flies, fishermen report, a condition unprecedented for this time of year. It is seldom that fish can be taken on fly after the middle of November, by which time the water ordinarily is colored by earth washed in by rains.
