Daily Devotions

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

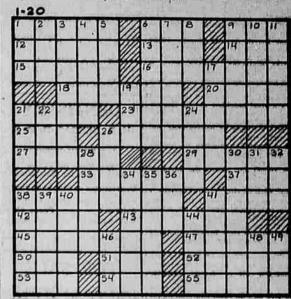

A great part of the pleasure and satisfaction in life is due to its infinite variety. There are no two flowers in all the world that are exactly alike, just as there has never heen any one person in all human history like any other person. Each ne has his own peculiar gift, his own distinct quality, that sets him over against any other that has ever lived. The important things in any one's life are not the things he has been endowed with but the use hat he makes of such as are its. Life's rewards and life's atlafactions come from using aithfully, intelligently, heipful f, the gifts that it brings it is. We would gladly and grate nily acknowledge Thee, O God in the giver of all our goo. If its and opportunities for service in Thy kingdom, Give in visdom and understanding and courage to put them to the best inse. Amen.

take sides with oither fiction in-volved. The chamber also voted to ask the state highway commis-sion not to share its funds with dition.
