CAREFULLY PLANNED SHOPPING SCHEME RESULTS IN SMART EASTER WARDROBE

When elements of a wardrobe are planned together, like this Janet Mollander redingote and frock, the effect of an extensive wardrobe can be economically obtained. The unlimited navy coat (left) is worn over a garden print frock in blue, white and green. The white lingerie jabot is worn outside the coat. The charming navy sheer frock (right) is stitched to resemble accordion pleating and can be worn with a variety of accessories.

NEW YORK.—For daytime hours, an Easter suit, a redingote, consisting of a wool coat and print frock, an extra dress that can be worn under the coat, and two sets of accessories comprise an almost complete wardrobe that's ultra-smart, too.

Any woman who gets such a wardrobe now simply will not have clothes problems until midsummer, when a cotton dress or a washable silk or two seem in order.

The trick, of course, is to stick to a color scheme, then stick to it. The girl who always says, "I haven't a thing to wear," proclaims to all the world that she mixes her color schemes, doesn't plan ahead—in other words, snags unwisely.

Envision Future Purchases

For example, suppose you decide to have a gray or beige suit for Easter, and a navy redingote and a white lingerie jabot that is worn outside the coat.

Changes of Accessories

To wear under the same coat, there is a charming navy sheer frock with skirt slit, a redingote, or a smartly styled white waistcoat belt. Flowers are good, too. A single flower or a tiny cluster is chic and attractive worn at the neck or shoulder.

Wooden jewelry in floral or modernistic designs—adds a certain something to a dress.

With an eye to careful and wise shopping, then, and an enthusiastic interest in accessories, there is no reason why any woman can't get along with a suit, a dress and a redingote for spring.
