SUPPOSE KING GEORGE SHOULD LOOK YOUR WAY

Coronation Inspires Mode's Crowning Achievement

By MALIAN YOUNG
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK.—For those women lucky enough to be going to London's coronation ceremony, fashionists agree that a formal (dressy but not fussy) suit is the correct thing to wear on the big day. Your most precious furs, white gloves and a corsage will see you through in fine style.

If you have good seats, your husband probably will wear striped trousers, a tuxedo and high silk hat. If not, a dark business suit. In either case, however, you'll dress as you would for an Easter parade.

May Be a Bit Misty or Nippy

Remember that London is likely to be chilly in May, so consider a suit with its own topcoat or take one which looks well over it. You may hate the idea of wearing a coat, but you hate the idea of catching cold even more, don't you?

One important store suggests a tailored suit of navy bengaline with fine wool hiplength swagger topcoat, trimmed with bengaline. The suit jacket is buttoned down the front and nipped in at the waist. The skirt has three gores in the front. The topcoat, with bengaline lapels, pocket flaps and cuffs, flares gracefully.

Another shop features a neat suit of beige tweil with a red fox cape.

Crowning a King is Dressy Business

London, especially during the coronation season, is one place where you can't overdress. You'll need simple dinner ensembles for the boat but not for Merry Old England. Take along all the formal evening gowns you can lay hands on. And the more formal they are, the better.

In addition to evening gowns, pack at least two dressy frocks for luncheons and teas. One can be chiffon wool, the other silk—perhaps a print.

An adequate wardrobe for one who is making a rather quick trip might include two suits—the formal one for the coronation and a tweed model for the boat, shopping and sight-seeing on coolish days and week-swagger topcoat of sheer navy wool has lapels, pocket flaps, and cuffs to wear with the second suit.

Don't make the mistake of worrying too much about clothes for the boat. The seasoned ocean traveler wears the same tweed suit, day after day, varying it a bit with jackets or sweaters. She is likely to be seen in the same dinner dress every night of the voyage, too—except the night of the captain's dinner. Then she puts on an evening gown.

Perfect for the coronation is this smart three-piece suit, worn with a pale pink chiffon Ascot and a corsage of lilies-of-the-valley. The hat, nipped-in-at-the-waist jacket and trim skirt are navy bengaline. The swagged topcoat of sheer navy wool has lapels, pocket flaps, and cuffs of bengaline to match.

A truly dramatic evening gown for coronation nights in London is of pure white silk crepe with bands of bold and silver embroidery in paisley motif. Notice the intricate draping of the skirt and the slit which reminds us that skirts will be shorter next season. A matching scarf can be draped about the head or worn across the shoulders.

TRY HONEY MAID GRAHAMS FOR THE BETTER DESSERTS

WIFE-SAVING DESSERT

Prepare one package of prepared chocolate pudding according to the directions on the package, except to use one cup less milk. While warm, spread between 4 Honey Maid graham crackers piled on top of each other. Allow to stand in the refrigerator over night. To serve, garnish with sweetened whipped cream and a sprinkle of cinnamon. This is supposed to be an individual service.

HONEY MAID NUT BREAD

Crumble fine 28 Honey Maid graham crackers, 1/2 cup sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup chopped walnut meats, chopped dates if desired. Beat well 2 eggs. Add 1 cup milk. Add to above along with 1-1/2 cup melted shortening. Blend only.

Turn into a well greased loaf bread pan and bake at 350 degrees (a moderate oven) for about 40 minutes. Slice when cold and spread with a mixture of cream cheese and preserved ginger or any fruit filling.

PINEAPPLE GRAHAM MUFFINS

Scrunch between your hands 16 Honey Maid graham crackers, add 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, add 1/2 cup milk heated to the boiling point and 1 well beaten egg. Fold in 1/2 cup drained crushed pineapple. Bake in greased muffin tins at 425 degrees (a quick oven) for 15 to 20 minutes.
