

DRIVER EXAMS IN ROSEBURG DATED

Glenn Down and his crew of examiners from the state motor vehicle department will be in Roseburg Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, to afford automobile drivers their last opportunity for examination before existing driver's permits expire. It was announced today. All previously issued licenses expire simultaneously June 30. Persons previously licensed in Oregon, and who have not yet reached the age of 70 years, and who have suffered no physical impairment since the last permit was issued, are not required to take an examination, and need only to make application for renewal and pay the $1 fee. Persons not previously licensed and all over 70 years of age, however, must pass the examination before the driver's license can be renewed.

H. H. Turner is in charge of the office open daily at the courthouse, where applications for renewal may be made by persons not required to pass tests. All those, however, who must take the examination can make their applications only through Mr. Down and his assistants.

near here early last April 7 when Jackson and Deputy J. C. Compton attempted to question two men about a robbery at South Bend.

Bandits had invaded the home of Mrs. Emma Cartier, bound and gagged her and escaped with $120 and some bond coupons.

Ryan, unarmed and weeping from exposure and strain, was captured in a beer tavern near Tacoma the night of April 14. He said he and Seelert, the latter suffering from buckshot wounds in the head, had crawled across and spent a week tramping through the rain-soaked timberland heading toward Puget sound. Ryan said Seelert kept a gun at his back forcing him to accompany him on the flight, until they finally parted company between here and Ta-this activity was turned over to the carpenters and joiners union, which started an organization to include every workman engaged in handling wood. Each craft connected with wood, from the felling of the timber, through to the finished product or structure, is organized in its own group, under the leadership of the carpenters and joiners and through that organization affiliated with the A. The lumbermen's union, more correctly known as the lumber and sawmill workers union, is now one of the largest, having 140,000 members. Eight-five per cent of the fir operators in the Pa-

Girdler Shouts "Liar"

As the federal board renewed peace negotiations in Cleveland with representatives of the four CIO steel independent steel companies — Republic, Bethlehem, Inland Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube — Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel, charged with members of the senate post-office committee in Washington, D. C.

Girdler caustically accused Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers' organizing committee and chief lieutenant of John L. Lewis, of being a "liar," and charged that he knew what he was talking about, in discussing the steel strike.

The outspoken steel executive told the senate committee that the basic issue in the 7-state steel strike "is the right of American citizens to work free from molestation by a labor organization whose apparent policy is either to rule or ruin American industry."

Meanwhile, CIO leaders in Warren notified their union locals to abandon plans for a general sympathy strike — in protest against a picket-restraining court order and the use of the national guard in carrying out the execution of stay-in workers at the Republic steel plant.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—(AP)—The accusation was made and immediately denied at a senate committee hearing today that Tom Girdler was asked to resign as head of the Jones-Laughlin Steel corporation for a breach of confidence.

The accuser was Senator Guffey (D., Pa.), who said it was "common talk in Pittsburgh" that Girdler was asked to get out of Jones-Laughlin "because you gave confidential information of your company to the company you are now with."

Girdler—now chairman of the Republic Steel corporation—was in the senate postoffice committee witness chair testifying as to strikes in Republic plants.

He shouted: "That's a lie and whoever told you that was a liar."

Guffey spoke of Girdler's transfer from one company to the other in response to the latter's comment that "Senator Guffey doesn't know what he's talking about."

"You were talking about irresponsible union officials," Guffey said. "Maybe that's one reason your employees don't want a verbal agreement with you, feeling that if you would give confidential information you aren't responsible either."

Girdler protested the question wasn't "relevant." He pointed out that Chairman McKeellar (D., Tenn.), had deposed him for his statement about Guffey.

"If the chairman will remove the ban, I'd like to answer that as it ought to be answered," Girdler said.

Girdler called Philip Murray, steel workers' organizing committee head, a "liar" and said Guffey "doesn't know what he is talking about" in his earlier testimony.

McKeellar immediately asked Girdler to withdraw his remark about Guffey, asserting that "senators are entitled to respectful speech by all witnesses."

Says Labor Act Obeyed

Girdler couldn't answer a question immediately after he had finished reading a prepared statement in which he told the committee the basic issue of the steel strike "is the right of American citizens to work free from molestation by a labor organization whose apparent policy is either to rule or ruin American industry."

Girdler said, in answer to questions, he was complying with the national labor relations act "in every particular" and that he had been dealing "with representatives of our employees" ever since the act became effective.

"Would you object to signing a writer's agreement between you and an organization of your own employees?" asked Senator Ellender (D., La.).

"Responsibility" Demanded

"If your own employees, properly organized, properly responsible, under proper leadership, wanted to enter into an understanding with us on wages, hours and conditions of employment," the steel magnate replied, "we would meet with them and make an arrangement satisfactory to them."

"Who would determine the propriety of their organization, whether it was responsible, and whether it had proper leadership?" demanded Senator O'Mahoney.

"I suppose in the last analysis I would have to determine that," Girdler retorted.

"But if you determine who the officers of the union are to be, there would be no real contract," O'Mahoney remarked.

Girdler explained that he wished to determine only whether the leadership was "responsible."

He branded as "absolutely false" Murray's statement the CIO represented at least 60 per cent of Republic Steel employees.

"My employees tell me that they have organizations of their own in several plants, differing in nature from place to place," Girdler said. "My duly accredited representaonly strike issue was whether the steel companies would sign an agreement already made orally with the union.

"That is not true," Girdler declared, "there is no such agreement, oral, or otherwise, now in existence."

Girdler added quickly that his statement did not mean the terms of employment in effect were indefinite, or uncertain. They have been reduced to writing, he said, in the form of notices posted in all plants where they apply "and are thoroughly understood by our employees."

23,000 Stick to Jobs

The steel executive, pausing to let his words sink in, said 23,000 Republic employees have remained at work throughout the strike "despite threats of violence" and many additional thousands have been kept from work against their will.

tives have been dealing with them ever since we started business."

When Ellender inquired how Girdler knew that the CIO did not represent a majority of his workers, the witness answered: "I am perfectly certain of it. But I don't know how I can furnish figures to prove it without violating the Wagner act."

He agreed, however, to submit figures showing how many men normally are employed in each Republic plant and how many are now working.

Dealing With CIO

"If 60 per cent of your men are members of the CIO, you realize that the Wagner act would compel you to bargain with them?" Ellender said.

"We are dealing with them now," Girdler replied. "Almost every day for example, some men purporting to speak for the CIO consult with the manager of our Warren plant about the strike situation."

"Ever since there was a CIO," he added, his representatives had held "conference after conference with men who claim they represent some of our employees."

"I never have tried to determine just how many they represent," he said.

Girdler testified his company had bargained with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, "before the days of the C. I. O."

He had no objection, he added, to an interstate organization of employees representing all plants.

The steel executive contended the employee representation plan which was in operation in the company's plants was not a "company union." He said Republic gave the plan "infinite" financial support but withdrew it after the Wagner act passed.

He asserted a committee representing employees now at work in Republic plants told him they would go on strike if the company signed a contract with C. I. O.

Lawlessness Denied

Denying charges of lawlessness made against the steel companies last week by Murray, the industrialist presented for the record pictures of rifles, dynamite and other weapons which he said Ohio sheriffs had seized from strike pickets.

Girdler demanded that labor unions be made responsible for their acts by law. The CIO movement headed by John L. Lewis, he said, lacks such responsibility and any contract with it "is not worth the paper it is written on."

Murray had testified that the Imagine our surprise, as our ad has run more or less regularly.

When we told her we did advertise and showed her an ad to prove it, she said, "Yes, but they look so much like all the rest, why don't you jolt them up a bit so they'll be easier to catch?"

That set us to thinking. Maybe she was right.

So here goes for a brand new idea. We'll run a column. You know, like Irvin S. Cobb and Walter Winchell. Of course, we don't expect to be a Cobb or a Winchell, but we'll try to give you a few smiles now and then.

And yes, you're right, we will probably talk a little about the building material business.

We might even kid some of you, now and then, but that's a sure sign we like you, so wait for our literary efforts in the issues to come.
