"20 Years to Life" for Child Slayer

Modishly clad Mrs. Helen Tierman, as emotionless as she has been during most of the events since her arrest and guilty plea in the slaying of her daughter in the Long Island woods, calmly faces her future in prison after hearing sentence of 20 years to life pronounced in court at Riverhead, N. Y.

TENNESSEE GIRL GENIUS ON VIOLIN AT AGE OF 7

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — At the age of 7, Ethel Joy Brown excels with her quarter-size violin. She tucked the instrument under her chin at the state violin trials at Nashville and played the "Hobgoblin Dance," by Gaby Ehrhardt.

When she had finished, the judges called an intermission. They took the child into a side room and had her play for them again and again. Then, though she had studied only nine months, they gave her the highest award of her class and the highest average of all contestants.

Joseph Haber, Memphis concert violinist, thinks the child is a genius.
