Good Suggestions

SOME people have laughed at, and some have criticized, May or Joe Carson of Portland for his campaign against the bug inspection stations maintained by the state of California at the Oregon line.

But it had another, shall we say, beneficial result. The California state chamber of commerce, after these many years and doubtless partly as a result of Mayor Carson's efforts, had a special committee investigate the border inspection service and report.

The recommendation by this committee that greater care and courtesy be shown was routine. There has never been any serious complaint that travelers are treated other than with courtesy. The suggestion that the inspection be speeded up was likewise routine.

But the suggestion made that the motor vehicle registration stations be consolidated with the bug stations is right good sense. There is no reason and never has been any reason why an outsider entering California should be compelled to stop twice to obtain admission papers.

The committee of the California chamber of commerce has done the state a real service in making these suggestions providing, of course, that the state officials will act on them.

Job Well Done

WHEN the federal government took back from the Oregon and California Railroad company the large area of timbered land in 18 Oregon counties those counties were faced with what nearly amounted to financial ruin.

The Stanfield bill brought relief to the counties but it was not a permanent solution. Guy Gordon of Roseburg who is special attorney for the Oregon land grant counties and who participated in the work of securing the passage of the Stanfield act went to Washington early this year where he spent two months.

Cordon did an excellent piece of work for the land grant counties. Douglas county, as one of these, will benefit greatly.

the house of representatives come up for reelection. If members of congress who have been willing even PROUD to be rubber stamps for the administration are uniformly elected in 1938, whereas those who have shown a tendency to use their own independent judgment are defeated, it will mean that after six years of virtual dictatorship we deliberately PREFER the methods of dictatorship to a government of checks and balances.

1938, for which the struggle over the Democratic leadership in the senate is merely a sort of curtain-raiser.

With the Democratic party, as represented in the senate, dividing already on the conservative-radical issue, it looks very much as if something is beginning to come of all the talk.

OUT OUR WAY

VACATION DIARY

BY JEAN SEIVWRIGHT Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS JOY—Heroine, hostess in small Maine tearoom. ROGER—Joy's fiancé; rising young designer. ANGIE—Joy's rival in love. DICK—Wacky young playboy, Roger's rival in love.

Yesterday, Peter throws new light on a strange house in the woods; he and Joy visit it, hear a heavy rhythmic sound issuing therefrom.

Thursday: Never know much of what's going on in the world... morning newspapers reach here in the afternoon; but we're always too busy with the big durtline rush to glance at them.

"Say, Cal," I exclaimed as I went into the old man's workshop in the afternoon, what can you tell me about Serene Shores?"

"You're not thinking of going there, are you?"

"Well, you don't have to worry about that. If they're not the kind to let me know that place they'll find another I reckon old Seth Bradshaw, who owned the land, didn't know what kind of folks he was selling to when that place was put up."

"Friday: Walked across to Miss Pegler's cottage this afternoon (she invited me yesterday). Though she calls it a 'cottage,' it looks like a mansion with its huge granite fireplaces, oriental scatter rugs, hand-woven draperies. She talked a lot about Dick... told me it was she who made him give up his job in New York."

"You know, my dear, he was working for too hard when he did look rather worn out when he arrived," I agreed, though I can't imagine that work alone could give such a strange expression to any one's face. To my way of thinking Dick had a hunted look in his eyes, when he came up here."

"Dick really needs the influence of a girl like yourself. I'm sure association with you this summer should have a steady influence on Dick... besides he's really fond of you. Nothing would give me greater pleasure than to have you marry him."

"Oh, Miss Pegler," I exclaimed, I can hardly see myself in the role of a mother and wife... guess going with Roger spoiled me... he's so different from Dick... strong, dependable are the adjectives I'd use for the man I'll love."

"Our talk drifted to other things. The tearoom door opened and soon we were in the throes of the lunch hour. After seating most of our regulars, Dick and Miss Pegler being at their usual table, I went forward to meet two men. 'Just casual customers,' I decided, for I saw they had some suitcases in their car, so I seated them at a table for two, where their presence would not be objectionable to our wacky guests. 'Nice place you've got here,' one of the men said, after they had ordered. Is this a summer resort?"

"Oh, no, the tearoom caters mostly to private individuals who have their summer cottages along the lake."

"Then you don't take any boarders here?" the other man questioned."

"Oh, no! Nothing like that. There is a resort a little farther up the lake, if you're looking for a place to stay."

"There is?" questioned the first man.

CONSIDERABLE talk is rampant concerning the slap the Roseburg Municipal association recently took at alleged indecencies connected with some visiting carnivals; at pinball machines; and at the city council. Some criticism has been directed at the association members because of their stand in these matters. Such criticism scarcely is warranted. I doubt if any normal person, young or old, could visit a nudist "show" without feeling a bit ashamed of himself for having done so, and hoping no one he knew had seen him there.

When I told Tess about this she was quite excited... said all the swells from far and near would be at it and for that one night a waitress is as good as a millionaire!

Made another interesting discovery when I was at Miss Pegler's. She's the executor who must give her okay to the girl Dick marries... still why should I be the backbone for a shaking reed? Dick walked to the tearoom with me... seems to improve on acquaintance... told him about Peter's adventure at the haunted house.

"Jigger here!" he gasped, and his face turned gray.

He arrived there at night, during a low tide. He liked the hard firm sand near the water so well the ball, tiring to take advantage of opportunities to advance on bases and to cross the plate with ease after reaching starting position. Vancouver's margin of victory was in the base running department and was due solely to more experience and coaching.

The series with the Vancouver team brought out the weaknesses of the local squad and gave the coaches a complete picture of the work necessary before the boys take up further competition in the elimination for the state title.

The next contest will be with Corvallis, the first of a three-game series being tentatively scheduled at Corvallis next Sunday. The winner of the Roseburg-Corvallis series will go to Woodburn to compete there in a four-team playoff for the state championship.

The series with Vancouver developed undeniably the fact that the Douglas County Juniors are an exceptionally hard-hitting group. They out-hit their opponents in each of the three games, but lost because of inexperience and training.

Roseburg lost two of the three games and tied the third. The games were featured by heavy hitting on the part of both teams, but Roseburg had the best of the one play at bat, despite the fact that one of the visiting pitchers, who was knocked out of the box last night, is contracted for semi-pro ball upon his return to Canada.

Weak on Base Running The local team, however, showed much weakness in base running and ability to convert hits into runs. Batters were slow in starting from the plate after hitting the ball, failing to take advantage of opportunities to advance on bases and to cross the plate with ease after reaching starting position.

The four sectional winners will meet in Woodburn Aug. 7 and 8, to settle the state championship.

The Vancouver team left early this morning on a trip down the coast to San Francisco and Los Angeles. They propose to stop in Roseburg on the return trip for another game here, either August 2 or 3, if arrangements can be made.

RAMBLINGS OF THE NEWS-REVIEW MAN BY PAUL JENKINS

Several hours later the gent awoke with a start. A big thrumming wave—always there is one at such a time in the tide—had washed clear into, and around the tent. "Hell," he shouted, leaping from his wet blankets and running outside, "what's going on here?" Returning immediately he commenced throwing his wife and kids out, right and left. "Run for your lives," he cried, "there's been a cloudburst!"

Tillamook was quite a town in those days. About the only easy contact it had with the outside world was by boat, and that wasn't as easy as it sounds.

Nearly everyone there, it seemed to me, was a relative of mine. A great-uncle had emigrated there in the early days, and he'd had a big family of girls, and one son, all of whom had married, soon enough.

All of them were proper little devils. Uncle was fond of saying, "They must have been I had some other several-times removed cousins who lived in Hillsboro. They ran the old Tualatin hotel there, and were rather 'high-falutin' folks for those days. One time a Tillamook relative struggled over the hills to their home and, wishing to entertain him, they took him to a show playing in the opera house.

He liked it. He liked it so well that, in the middle of the second act he was bursting with so much enthusiasm he couldn't keep quiet any longer. Leaping to his feet he shouted out the only words of extreme approval he knew: "Hurrah! Hurrah!" he cried, and added for good measure, "Hurrah for Tillamook!"

His Hillsboro cousins were kind of mortified, and didn't take him to see any more shows.

Replica of Pioneer Wedding Staged by Pageant Cast—Eugene publicity picture appearing in some newspaper, or other. Whether by accident or design, an elderly, bearded and determined looking individual was shown standing directly behind the bride and groom, and his bride, with a shotgun grasped firmly in both his hands.

The bride was very lovely, and whether he thought so or not, was worth the risks the groom must have taken.

Present plans are to play the first of the three-game series at Corvallis next Sunday. The second and third games, in the event the third meeting is required, will be played as a doubleheader in Roseburg August 1. If the plan now under consideration is finally adopted.

Eatacwin and Woodburn will meet to determine the title for districts No. 1 and No. 2; Hood River and Ontario will play for the championship of districts No. 5 and 7, and the Portland district championship, No. 8, will be settled between El Roy Rooters and Postoffice Pharmacy.

The four sectional winners will meet in Woodburn Aug. 7 and 8, to settle the state championship.
