After 20 Years—Whither?

LET'S take a glimpse at what Americans were thinking about in January, of 1918. These things, 20 years have done:
January, 1918: Bitter criticism leveled at War Department for failure of American arms program. After eight months of war, American arms not yet available to American soldiers. Secretary Baker savagely arraigned as a wobbling incompetent, almost a traitor.

ENDS LIFE WITH RADIO IN HIS ARMS

CINCINNATI, Jan. 7.—(AP)—With a small radio flaring "Springtime in the Rockies" in his arms, Charles Davis, 33, leaped three stories to his death today. Davis was killed outright, his body landing on a garage roof, but the radio, to which an extra length of electric cord had been attached, played on. Witnesses reported when they reached Davis' body a dance band was playing "Home Sweet Home." Police Lieut. George Dooley said the man's wife reported he had been released Wednesday from a jail sentence and that he had been some violent during an argument a few minutes before he jumped from the window.

COACH EXONERATED IN TRAFFIC DEATH

SALINAS, Calif., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Earl Sheedy, St. Mary's college basketball coach, today was cleared of blame for the death of Carl Holliday, San Jose State college instructor, in an automobile collision near here in 1936. Judge H. G. Jurensen ruled against the $41,222 damage suit filed in superior court here by Holliday's widow, Mrs. Salome Holliday, of San Jose.

MEDIATION BOARD MEMBER NAMED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt nominated George A. Cook of Illinois today to be a member of the national mediation board. He will succeed the late James W. Earnall. Cook is now board secretary.

AMERICAN CHOSEN MCGILL U. PREXY

MONTREAL, Jan. 7.—(Canadian Press)—Lewin Williams Douglas, former United States director of the board, was installed today as principal of McGill university. Douglas was born in Hubers, Ariz., and had made Phoenix his home, but his father and grand father were natives of Quebec.

It takes in. The national debt at the end of the current fiscal (financial) year is expected to be about 37 1/2 billion dollars and about 35 1/2 billion at the end of the 1939 fiscal year.

NOTE, please, that in the past couple of days the stock market has gone up more than it has gone down. Market observers report that new inflationary tendencies are responsible in part for this situation.

Inflation causes money to be worth less and THINGS to be worth more. People who anticipate inflation hasten to exchange their money for things. When people prefer things to money, prices rise.

(WHEN individuals spend until their credit is exhausted and they can no longer borrow, they GO BROKE. When governments spend until they can no longer borrow, they THIN OUT the money. This process is called inflation. It is essentially similar to pouring water into the milk to make it look like more.)

THE danger of inflation is always present when the government is spending more than it takes in. President Roosevelt, who has been the world's biggest spender, is beginning to recognize this danger and is urging reduction of expenditures.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

KAY DEARBORN—heroine who inherits a yacht for vacation. MELITA HOWARD—Kay's roommate and co-adventurer. PRISCILLA DUNN—the third adventurer. FURREST BROTHERS and GRANT HARPER—young scientists whose expedition turned out to be a rare experience.

CHAPTER VI

"Well, mentioned Kay to Priscilla, 'there was your chance to give the man a piece of your mind. And you never opened your mouth.' 'How could I?' asked the blond member of the trio. 'After Melita had pulled the button with the jolting anchor and he was so nice about it I couldn't very well be ungrateful, could I?' 'Not possibly,' said Melita. 'He was too good-looking.' She hurried forward to have another try at anchoring the 'Chimook.' This time, following the advice of the young man from the 'Albatross,' the attendant said, 'But you can make Larromore without any trouble.'

CHAPTER VII

"I wonder who our friend was," mused Kay as they sat down to the table. 'Do you suppose we have never accepted his invitation to breakfast?' 'And run the chance of being shanghaied?' exclaimed Melita cautiously. 'Not on your life! We've got our own little cruise to take care of.' She peered out at the window toward the white light which could still be seen in the gathering dusk. 'I'll admit it was pretty nice riding in that bathtub.' 'He satisfied with what you have,' suggested Priscilla complacently. 'Didn't our friend say that we'd probably see him again? What more do you want?' 'They were washing dishes in the galley when a ball drifted across the water, obviously from a megaphone. 'Aloof, Chimook?' 'The girls looked at each other. 'I'll bet,' said Melita, 'they want to play bridge.' 'Just after breakfast?' Kay told her. 'I'll go at and see what they want.' She went to the cockpit and yelled across the water. 'Hello, don't forget your anchor light, a pleasant voice called. 'Oh... thanks,' Kay yelled back. She returned to the galley somewhat subdued. 'I forgot about the white light forward when I anchored.' Priscilla's face was a comic study. 'Is that all he wanted? I wish he was longer on sociability and shorter on advice.' 'That was good advice,' Kay decided. 'And don't forget we turned down his breakfast invitation.' 'You did,' Priscilla pointed out.

CHAPTER VIII

"True to their plans, they were moving out of Fairweather Cove at dawn the next morning. To their utter astonishment, the 'Albatross' had already gone! 'That's darned funny,' said Melita. 'They must have had that breakfast of theirs pretty early.' 'Probably they're going to catch a favorable tide,' Kay told her. 'In that fast boat they could catch a tide we couldn't hope to hit in the 'Chimook' with its slower speed.' 'We'll have to make use of the chart today, friends? Mel will you get on the chart Jim Pike marked 'Snapper One' Fairweather or Kay's to Weston's Point?' 'Rehearsed with the confidence yesterday's evening had given them and also after a dreamless sleep in Fairweather Cove, the skipper and crew of the little 'Chimook' got along lamely. Late that afternoon they stopped at a small hut and supply stock. Jim Pike had recommended that they should there, as further on was a sadder country where fuel stations would be fewer and towns not at all.

Daily Devotions

By DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS
"Thou dost not know," Kay confessed helplessly. "If we were on our course we should have reached it three-quarters of an hour ago. But maybe the engine isn't up to its speed. . . . Anyhow, let's take a chance and anchor here. It's not well protected, but there's no wind." "Look!" exclaimed Priscilla. "There's a rain back in the trees. And it looks as if there's a light rain or a fire in the fireplace." "Good. . . ." Kay turned the ignition switch. "Let's drop anchor and go ashore in the dinghy. At least they can tell us where we are, and if we can find a safer anchorage near here." Soon they were rowing ashore in the dinghy and Kay was out with a flashlight the moment the Little boat nosed into the sand. Melita and Priscilla followed her up the weed-grown path to where the cabin was set among the trees. They saw her stand dead still as she passed the window. Then she stepped closer, looked inside. But two girls cowering and howling, her shoulder stiffen and then she screamed wildly. (To be continued)

DRIVING OREGON HIGHWAYS

By EARL SMILL Secretary of State
Two state motor vehicle laws apply to private roads? No. All state regulations, such as those which govern licensing, speed and movement in traffic, apply only to vehicles which move on the public streets and highways.

CHOIR GIRL STABS FATHER TO DEATH

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Charged with stabbing her father to death as she prepared for choir rehearsal in a church down the block, 18-year-old Dorothy Schuster sobbed in a cell today that "I only meant to scare him." Acting Police Inspector John J. Underwood said the attractive girl confessed she plunged a carving knife into her father's breast after he had annoyed the neighbors and menaced her mother and her self in an alcoholic rage over the prospect of losing his job.

R. H. S. STUDENTS ASSEMBLY GUESTS

Students of Oakland high school entertained Roseburg senior high school at the regular assembly period yesterday morning. The assembly was opened with class and school yells, followed by announcements from C. H. Board, principals.

STUDENTS URGED TO HAVE THEIR PICTURES TAKEN

With the deadline for taking Uniqua pictures, February 4, less than four weeks away, only 22 seniors, 28 juniors, and 29 sophomores have had their conventional snapshots at Clark's photo studio. Leonard Riley, adviser, and Thelma Carter, editor of the Roseburg senior high school year-book have been urging the students to be prompt in getting their pictures taken. The earliest were snapped on December 27.

26,893 IN OREGON ASK JOBLESS PAY

SALEM, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Unemployment compensation commission registrations in Oregon during the first four days this week totaled 26,893, about half of them being in Portland. D. A. Bulmore, state administrator, said today. Registrations began Monday. The total was almost half the 55,567 persons estimated to be without work by the federal unemployment census. However, many unemployed persons will not qualify for benefits, including agricultural workers, domestics working in private homes, government and state employees, and persons working for religious, educational, charitable or scientific institutions. Payments will start January 17 to 12,000 persons who registered Monday, when registrations began. Payments are started two weeks after registration. Payments will range between $7 and $15 and will continue for 16 weeks unless the registrant has obtained a job. The unemployment compensation commission's employment service will attempt to find jobs for persons receiving benefits, the work to be comparable with the work the recipient did before he lost his job. Bulmore said the commission would visit a few days on whether Portland seasonal workers, forced out of work by the bitter CO-AGL jurisdictional dispute, are entitled to benefits.
