ASK ADMISSION TO MILITARY CAMP

Applications for admission to Citizens' Military Training camp have been made by Bertram R. Shoemaker, Charles E. Church, Frederick H. Radigan, Edgar A. Lewis, Robert W. Bellows, Dalton W. Miller and Harvey L. Epstein, all of Roseburg, and Stanley D. Esselstrom of Reedsport, according to H. O. Pargeter, of Roseburg, who is serving as county chairman of the military training camps association. Mr. Pargeter is in charge of local arrangements for the enrollment of boys from Douglas county.

To attend camp, a boy must be at least 17 years old, in good physical condition, of good moral character and able to read and write. Complete expenses of attendance at camp are furnished by the government, which includes food, uniforms, quarters, bedding and transportation allowance to and from camp at the rate of five cents per mile.

While Douglas county has a tentative quota of five members, the quota may be increased, depending upon the number of applications received. It is expected that more than 500 boys from southwestern Washington and the entire state of Oregon will attend this year's training camp, set for the period from July 3 to August 7.
