U. S. V. HOSPITAL

By FACILITY EARS

Last Sunday two groups of friends helped us to worship with music. One from Melrose, directed by Miss Bessie Hagan, delayed their dinner to come to us straight from their own church. After the Rev. Perry Smith's message some young girls from the Baptist church in Roseburg, directed by Mrs. Claude Baker, sang hymns.

Many motion pictures are mere costume dialogues, but the acting of Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer in "Conquest," which we saw Monday night, was a dramatic performance worthy of the legitimate stage in the days of Sarah Bernhardt.

Good will ambassadors are known to newspaper readers as travelers who, by personal visits, establish friendly relations between nations. Until Tuesday the name Sutherland meant to most of us just a small town near Roseburg, Mrs. Furman's orchestra, and the troupe of peppy entertainers who came with them that evening, made us know that Sutherland is a community of generous neighbors and people of real talent. We enjoyed every bit of the show, and we cordially thank Earl Wolfe, who arranged it as a contribution from the Disabled American Veterans.

Wednesday night the auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars came to dance with us, and provided an orchestra which made the occasion a real party. Orange punch, served by Mrs. St. Van Voorst and Mrs. Myrtle Norwood, was a treat too.

After seeing the picture, "Wife, Doctor and Nurse," Thursday night we think the physicians in the Veterans Administration may have chosen a career less complicated than general practice, although their patients may not be so interesting.

Friday was April Fools' Day, but there was no fooling about the entertainment the Lions club brought us that evening. We are discovering that the Chamber of Commerce is interesting several fine organizations to remember us, and we surely appreciate their amusements.

Did you ever see a man in a rolling chair play pool? William McKinley Hanks, who had the misfortune to break his leg Christmas day, is now getting about on wheels, and enjoys the pool room afternoons.

What the eaves—and some doorways—dropped:

"Have you been taking your setting-up exercises?"

"Yes, I do most of my exercising a-setting up (sitting)."

"When the lights go out, where do they go?"

"When I get some money I am going to have a whole pan full of applause just for myself, a big, new, white enamel dishpan with whipped cream on the top like suds!"

"Let's get a book on some place, and spend a year abroad next Sunday afternoon."

"I wish those wings of the morning the poets write about had an airplane cabin to carry me from my bed to the mess hall."
