

HIGH COURT TARDY, HUGHES ADVISED

City livestock market. The supreme court invalidated the order on the ground that the commission men were not permitted to rebut findings of fact by an agriculture department examiner.

Chief Justice Hughes wrote the decision. Immediately afterward the national labor relations board moved to withdraw several of its orders against large industrial firms.

Quotes Justice Hughes Wallace's letter to the chief justice said in part:

"You will be interested to know that the practice you now recommend, that the examiner conducting the hearing, make a report which is available to both parties for exceptions and argument, was adopted by this department about 20 months ago.

"You will recall that when you remanded this same case to the lower court in May, 1936, you discussed this question and at that time you wrote: '... We can not say that that particular type of procedure was essential to the validity of the hearing. The statute does not require it and what the statute does require relates to substance and not form.'

"Although you pointed out that such procedure was not required, we nevertheless felt that its adoption would help to assure fair play to all parties and made it a part of our regular procedure in all cases arising under the packers and stockyards act and similar legislation.

"I am glad to know that the court has now approved the procedure which the department already had inaugurated."

Impounded Funds Taken Wallace's letter set out that "up until this present administration no examiner's report in connection with hearings under the packers and stockyards act had been thought essential."

Wallace also discussed the decision in a letter to senators, asserting the effect was to give the "commission men and their attorneys $700,000 of impounded money which rightfully belongs to the farmers."

Much of Chief Justice Hughes' address before the American bar institute concerned administrative bodies. His principal theme, however, was that the nation's lawyers exert their influence toward the selection of "able and industrious judges."

His statement that some judges do harm "with their conspicuous ineptness" drew attention from senators. Several expressed the belief that the chief justice had no specific persons in mind.

killed a republican proposal to turn administration of relief back to the states. More than 50 other amendments also were defeated.

Representative Fish (R., N. Y.), remarked that a "well-oiled steamroller" was in operation.

Only twice were administration forces upset. They failed to kill an amendment to make farmers who are in need of work and not on relief rosters eligible for employment on rural WPA projects. They were unable to keep rural-minded legislators from adding $40,000,000 to the $60,000,000 proposed by the appropriations committee for rural electrification.

Disaster Warning Ignored Republicans fought the bill with every argument and parliamentary device they could muster. They said it would lead to national disaster, that it was senseless to try to bring about recovery by more spending and by throwing the budget farther out of balance, and that business confidence could be restored by scrapping administration policies.

Democrats cited estimates that the bill would supply jobs for about 4,100,000 persons, and said "pump-priming" was necessary to aid lagging business.

They hewed down Fish's attempt to deprive the president of the right to approve WPA projects.

For a time the house fought the wage-hour battle over again, when attempts were made to strike out whereas purchasers of at site power must build their own transmission systems.

Clyde L. Seavey, acting chairman of the commission, said copies of the proposed schedules had been transmitted to governors and congressional representatives of Oregon and to the state public authorities for study and suggestions.

Open to All Seavey said prime power for resale would be made available at the power plant to states, public power districts, counties, municipalities, public bodies, cooperatives and private electric utilities. It would also be available to private purchasers for their own consumption.

Power for resale delivered to consumers over the Bonneville transmission system would be available to the same groups.

In setting up his proposed schedules, Ross departed from the practice of figuring rates on the basis of the kilowatt hour. By using the kilowatt year—that is a thousand watts supplied day and night for 12 months—he has said he hoped to encourage wider use of power and get away from the theory of scarcity.

or Secretary Hull opposed action at this time.

Chairman Pittman (D., Nev.), of the foreign relations committee said the committee's action meant action on the Nye resolution had been "postponed indefinitely." This usually is tantamount to killing a resolution.

Reconsideration of the present neutrality legislation, Secretary Hull said, should be delayed until differentials in WPA pay. Proposals to fix a WPA minimum wage of $32 or $40 a month were defeated, as were those to allow a 10 per cent differential or none at all in rates between the various states.

Representative O'Connell (D., Mont.), contended that differential proponents wanted to "drive wages in the north down to the feudal level they have in the south."

Representative Maverick (D., Tex.), said it was "ridiculous" for northerners to combat differentials for the south in a wage-hour bill and then insist on them for WPA.

"I've been going along with you Yankees and republicans," he roared. "I voted for a minimum wage act. You ought to be fair to the southern part of the United States."

Southerners were largely instrumental in scuttling a wage-hour bill last December.

A revised bill—the last major item remaining on the house agenda—will reach the chamber May 23. Leaders have abandoned a plan to bring it up earlier.

ing-Hankow railway.

(A Hankow dispatch said two American Presbyterian houses of worship were damaged in Japanese raids on Suchow Wednesday and Thursday despite the fact that large American flags were painted on the roofs. No foreigners were injured. Officials of the missions reported the incidents to the American embassy.

(Another dispatch from Kai-feng, Lanchow railway station, said the Anglo-American China inland mission hospital was crowded with wounded after intensive Japanese air raids Thursday. The Kai-feng railroad station was destroyed.)

Scattered fighting was reported continuing on Amoy island, off the South China coast, where Japanese marines were mopping up isolated Chinese units.

CHENGCHOW, China, May 13—(AP)—Three American southern Baptist missionaries, a Briton and a Canadian working with them and several Italian church workers narrowly escaped death today when Japanese warplanes heavily bombed Chengchow, railway center 275 miles north of Hankow.

The Americans were Dr. Sanford Ayers, of Atlanta; Rev. Wilson Fielder, of Fort Worth, Tex., and Miss Katie Murray, Rose Hill, N. C.

Eight bombs hit the Baptist compound, damaging church buildings and causing eight casualties among the mission's Chinese staff. Three bombs hit the Italian Catholic Parma society mission, injuring or killing ten additional Chinese occupants.

Among more than 100 buildings wrecked by the bombs was the Rotary club's charity school.
