Daily Devotions

By DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS

Peter stood up with the eleven; all the believers kept together; they were all with one accord in one place. Surrendered to God and so at one with Him they had a common mind and one purpose. The old rivalries and jealousies, which had disfigured their fellowship, had been burnt out. So they became a community, a fellowship bound together because of their common loyalty to God and to one another. So they became a team, the white company of Christ. Guided by God's Holy Spirit. Our Father, as we look out upon a distracted, divided and fearful world, forgive us for our sins. Bring us together across all barriers of color and class, of ritual and organization, that we may more fully witness to Thy gospel's power and thus bring in Thy kingdom. Amen.

RODEO HEADS GIVEN CRUELTY WARNING

PORTLAND, May 26.—(AP)—The state humane society forwarded messages to rodeo managers yesterday warning them against "torturing or tormenting animals."

Harry Daniels, president, said the action was aimed primarily against the Pendleton roundup. He asserted the society "nearly had to close" the famous eastern Oregon show last year.

He asserted the bulldozing contests injured cattle and horses and "the animals are then left lying helpless for two or three days before they are destroyed."

Daniels said the society had condemned administering stimulants to excite horses to more spirited performances, gouging spurs on saddles, electric probes on Brahmas steers' throats, long hooves and heavy shoes to make show horses prance higher, arched and kicked tail sets for show and saddle horses.

MEDFORD, May 26.—(AP)—A circuit court jury late Wednesday, after short deliberation, acquitted William Hodson, 65, Jacksonville resident, of a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.
