POET'S CORNER

RED, WHITE AND BLUE

By J. C. Davis, Devers, Calif.

Over our slumbering heroes once more,
Tenderly spreads the dear colors they bore,
Roses, as red as the life-blood they shed
Lilies as pale as the face of the dead;
Violets, blue as the field where the stars
Flashed at white heat in the furnace of Mars,
When each stalwart bosom a bulwark became,
Shielding our Nation from ruin and shame;
Our thanks and our hearts and our flowers and our tears,
For those who gave their manhood's best years.
—Presented by The Women's Auxiliary to Dean-Perrine chapter, No. 9, Roseburg.

Mr. Trent, who will have personal charge of the demonstration, is a globe trotter who has touched upon practically every known country on the globe and has had many experiences while serving as a radio operator.

He is an authority on places as well as cooking.

He served with the Byrd Antarctic expedition, has circled the globe twice, has served in radio service in New Zealand, was in the Louisville flood and aided in rescue service during the Ohio river flood and in the Chinese flood.
