THEY BUY FOR FUEL ECONOMY

Most people know that the "Caterpillar" Diesel D-2 operates on only 1 1/2 gallons of cheap diesel fuel per hour. They buy it for its fuel savings. They are doubly pleased when they put it to work to find that it has so many features other than fuel savings to make it an outstanding product.

AS ONE OWNER PUTS IT: "It steers so easily—no need for brakes—and the seat seems to fit my back, it's the most comfortable machine I've ridden."

ANOTHER OWNER SAYS: "There's foot room for big feet and plenty of space for long legs and the controls are so convenient."

AND ANOTHER: "No more bumping and jostling when I work the cross-rows—the D-2 rides right over them."

BANKERS FACING BIGGER PROBLEMS

Debt Only for Necessities Advised by President of Oregon Association.

CORVALLIS, Ore., June 13.—(AP)—Pump priming is no solution to the present difficulties in financing. Clyde E. Williamson, Albany, state president of the Oregon Bankers association, told members at the opening session of the state convention today.

"Pump priming cannot take the place of confidence nor recapture the American people," he said. "We are faced on every hand by debt problems in private and national life. The loose thinking and habits developed makes more difficult the problems of the banker. The easy payment plan is the easy way. It is time bankers began discouraging debt for everything but necessities. Debt hangs as a millstone around necks, and robs the individual and the family of otherwise happy moments."

"The abundant life idea needs to be punctured. Have everything the other fellow has and even more. What an idea! It is time to call a halt to such foolish notions encouraged by misleading propaganda. The abundant life is possible only for the most careful people. Loose financial thinking is another bad idea. It is easier to finance an automobile than a home because of this distorted financial thinking. The trend toward materialism is also bad."

"Many old ideas on banking are out-moded," Williamson warned. "Banking now ranks as a profession that needs deep and constant study."

Williamson praised the sponsorship by banks of 4-H clubs and other organizations designed to get people back into the habit of helping themselves away from government. "The government owes them a living."

Philip A. Benson, vice-president of the American Bankers' association, Brooklyn, N. Y., conveyed the greetings of his organization.

He asserted that "banks everywhere are seeking good loans and would, in fact, prefer a good borrower to a good depositor. Some banks are even advertising for loans. But they want to make loans that will be repaid at maturity."

Bankers, he continued, are criticized on one hand for refusing to make loans and admonished not to relax sound lending policies on another.
