Now Is the Time

THIS morning the Associated Press wires carried the news that the city of The Dalles has authorized its city engineer to prepare plans and specifications for a city natatorium. The council contemplates the construction of an outdoor pool 165x60 feet in dimensions, to cost approximately $45,000.

To those who have argued that a pool is not needed here because this city is located on a river, the above should prove most interesting. The Dalles is on the bank of the great pool created by the Bonneville dam and yet the city council there determines to construct a concrete swimming pool.

There is shortly to begin a new spending and lending program by the federal government. New projects for work for the unemployed will be sought. We have gone through this in the past. The territory has been literally combed for suitable projects to keep WPA workers busy. A swimming pool project has not previously been sponsored largely for the reason that the cost of materials on such a project would be rather large.

But a pool is needed here. It could be put on school property. The labor could be furnished by WPA. It seems as though now is the proper time to actually set about getting a swimming pool built.

Use Your Head

THE ghastly day approaches. Everybody is now set to handle the firecracker with a foot pole—and then take the car out for a 10-mile-an-hour spin in holiday traffic.

Ho hum—another one of those annual Fourth of July editorials. Yawn away, brother.

But don't—if you aren't quite ready yet to settle down into that eternal sleep—don't get caught napping on the 4th of July. And it might even be worth your while to keep your wits every day in the month.

For this is the most murderous month of the year. For five years more people have died of accidental causes in July than in any other month. July days are the hey-days for traffic accidents, for drownings, for fireworks injuries, of course, and for fatal falls.

More than two and a half times as many persons were slain by man's stupidity and carelessness last July as lost their lives during the entire Revolutionary war. One million were injured.

Yawn, brother—if you can—in the face of that!

give him the kind of congress he wants, believes as sincerely as he ever believed anything that what this country needs above everything else is an INDEPENDENT congress, made up of men who will do their OWN THINKING instead of blindly taking orders from the White House.

UPON us rests the obligation to keep this a free country FOR OUR CHILDREN. Concentrating too much power in one man's hands destroys freedom.

GUN MISHAP KILLS LANE COUNTY BOY

EUGENE, Ore., June 28.—(AP)—Ray Irvin, 14, was accidentally killed by a companion on a hunting excursion near West Springfield this afternoon, county officials announced. He was the son of Everett Irvin, travelling timekeeper for the WPA.

Accompanied by Virgil Thompson, 31, and Vernon Hand, 13, Ray had gone into the hills near his home. Each of the boys carried a 22 calibre rifle and shortly after they left town, they "flushed" a flock of jays that had been feeding on a dead animal.

The lad, shot at the birds and young Hand had just reloaded his rifle when it accidentally discharged as Irvin walked in front of him.

The bullet entered the boy's temple and he died before help could be obtained.

FORMER MELROSE RESIDENT DIES

According to word received here, Mrs. Chris Nielsen, 59, formerly of Melrose, Ore., died June 27, at the Dickerson, N. D., hospital. Mrs. Nielsen became ill while caring for her husband and eleven children, but in a critical condition from pneumonia. She is survived by her husband and eleven children, two of which, Clayton and Woodrow, reside at Melrose. They left Tuesday for New England. The Nielsen family resided for three years at Melrose until April 1, last, when they returned to their 500-acre ranch at New England.

Daily Devotions

By DR. CHAS. A. EDWARDS "Beauty for ashes—the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness." If something like that marvelous transformation has not occasionally taken place in your experience, perhaps you ought to ask why it has not. Days of darkness and hours of depression will come, but if there is any reality in the promise of these verses, there is a way up and out of such states of mind and soul open to the man who believes in God, and you and I and every one who so believes ought to be able to find it. After all, these great promises are not simply rhetorical phrases, or mere wishful thinking. We have found Thy word true, Our God, in many a day and hour of need, but we would pray that our faith and confidence might grow stronger, and more real as the days come and go and that strength and comfort may be great realities to us. Amen.

OUT OUR WAY

HOLDUP HONEYMOON

BY EDWIN RUTT Copyright 1938, NEA Service Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS JOSEPH SANDHAM—hero; he thought he was on top of the world until he snacked into KELLY ARCHER—heroine; she thought she was headed for the altar until she snacked into ED, the WEASEL—gangster; he thought he was headed somewhere, too, but affairs somehow got mixed up.

Yesterday, Joe snacked into a chicken peddler and at the moment when they are backing away, the state troopers come zooming down the highway.

CHAPTER VI State Troopers McFee, Callahan and Danzig were returning to headquarters from having quelled a riot in a roadhouse. But perceiving two apparently disabled trucks at the highway and what looked like a heated argument they paused in their homeward flight. Halting their motorcycles in the middle of the road but still straddling them, they gazed upon the recent debaters with interest. State Trooper McFee, undoubtably the strongest personality of the trio, spoke first.

"Now then," inquired State Trooper McFee, "What's goin' on here?" To Mr. Antonio Giuseppe Tarantino the advent of the constabulary had been as the coming of Blucher to the Duke of Wellington. Just a moment ago he had watched helplessly as the Ford backed off the telegraph pole preparatory to resuming speed. Now it appeared that all operations would be halted.

"Decent guy," began Mr. Tarantino, pointing at Joe. He got no further. "Shut up," commanded State Trooper McFee. "I'll do the talkin' here."

Before beginning he studied the assemblage. He was a little nonplussed by it. Antonio Giuseppe Tarantino looked what he was, an excitable Italian. Kelly and Joe looked collegiate. Ed the Weasel looked like nothing on earth. State Trooper McFee scratched his head in perplexity, trying to reconcile the association of the three in the Ford.

"You," he said at last, indicating Joe. "What happened here?" Briefly Joe told him. "And," he finished, "this fellow expects us to pay for his chickens when the accident was his fault."

"Hell," said State Trooper Callahan, who hated being left out of a discussion, "what's the sense of payin' for 'em? They're here, ain't they?" "That's more or less what he told me," said Joe.

State Trooper McFee made up his mind to brook no interference with his cross-examination. He indicated State Troopers Callahan and Danzig.

"Examine that truck over there," he ordered frigidly. Coerced by Mr. McFee's forcefulness, State Troopers Callahan and Danzig did as bidden. They returned presently to report the truck in fair condition, save for a slightly dented radiator.

"I'll run, won't I?" asked State Trooper McFee. "Sure. Ain't nothin' wrong with the engine."

"Then take it away," said Mr. McFee to Antonio Giuseppe Tarantino. "We can't have no such thing blockin' up the road."

Antonio Giuseppe Tarantino wrung his hands. Things were not going to his liking. It looked as if he were going to have to pay for the wandering chickens out of his own pocket.

"But da chickens?" he remonstrated. "Cluck, cluck," said a kitching hen, as if to help remind Mr. McFee that feathered folk were present.

State Trooper McFee gazed disapprovingly down at the hen. Then, with a sudden movement, he bent and scooped her up, much as Mr. Frank Crockett is wont to scoop up a grounder.

"There you are," he said triumphantly, presenting the hen to ated. "Well, isn't this something?" she said, in a low voice. "Here we are being forced to Canada at the point of a gun and the law spends the golden hours chasing chickens. No wonder things are upset in this country. Something hard struck the small of her back. "Shut up, hussed the Weasel hoarsely. "Less you wanta stop a bullet." His tones were the tones of a desperate man. Kelly subsided. Corpered, such as the Weasel would doubtless stop at nothing. (To be continued)

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning! The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Be stubbornly refuse anything else.
