years old, most of them appeared in excellent health. Only a few were ill. Some leaned on the arms of attendants, but many were those who stepped proudly along as tall and straight as when they shouldered a musket three-quarters of a century ago.

The weatherman beamed on the reunion. For several days it has been cloudy and rainy. Today, as the anniversary program opened, Gettysburg was bathed in broad sunshine.

Lone "Red" in Blue Host. Not a whole trail of blue uniformed union veterans arriving here today stepped a lone man in gray—Sampson S. Simpson, full bearded and six feet two, commander of the Pacific division of the United Confederate Veterans.

"I stood 'em all the way for four days," he chuckled, looking over his traveling companions from California, Oregon, Washington and other western states. "I had more fun with those Yankees," Simpson said grinning broadly. "I was the only Confederate soldier on the train."

Simpson is from Bell, Calif., a Los Angeles suburb. He served as a private in company E, eighth Virginia Cavalry. Asked if he fought at the battle of Gettysburg, he replied: "None, and I'm glad I didn't—I mightn't have been here today."

tuted during bad years, with funds accruing during more prosperous times.

The president compared that Scandinavian country's success in paying off war debts with the United States which he noted did not rid itself in the comparatively good business years of 1936-37 of the cost of lending and spending programs in 1933-34-35.

Fast Pace Set. In the present $3,750,000,000 campaign to aid economic conditions in general, Mr. Roosevelt said all federal agencies involved were pushing toward top speed by the first of the month.

PWA, he asserted, was going ahead as fast as it could. WPA would have as many as possible of its recently authorized 400,000 new workers enrolled by that time, and the civilian conservation corps was nearing its 350,000 full strength. Other agencies with lesser programs were hitting a fast pace, too, he added.

Armaments Not Remedy. Describing unemployment as a continuing problem, the chief executive said no country has developed a permanent solution of it. The only assembly 100 per cent solution of keeping all employable at work all the time, he added, was to pile up armaments. That, Mr. Roosevelt declared, is no permanent solution because it involves the manufacture of goods which do not reproduce wealth.

At the city hall the lodge officials will make the formal presentation, after which the fire department will stage an exhibition and water fight for the entertainment of the spectators. A dance will be held at the Maccabees hall at 9 p. m., sponsored by the fire department in appreciation of the action of the lodge. Proceeds will go to the Eagles to be used in meeting their convention expense.

NYE TRIUMPHS IN N. DAKOTA PRIMARY

John Field 1,917. Regular Demos Lead. On the democratic side, only a few votes had been counted as election officials concentrated on the republican ballots. Candidates of the "regular" organization were running ahead of opponents backed by a "progressive" group or seeking nomination as independent.

Returns from 78 precincts for the democratic nomination for senator gave J. J. Nygaard, "regular," 1,439; Halvor Halvorson, independent, 413; and E. A. Johansen, "progressive" 133. The same number of precincts for democratic nomination for governor gave the regular candidate, John Mogen, 1,199; Oliver Olsenberg, 119.

In the democratic race for the house of representatives, 78 precincts gave Max Strahlow, regular, 1,045; H. L. Henry, also a regular, 959; and Alfred S. Dale, progressive, 322.

North Dakota's two representatives in congress are elected at large, with two to be nominated from each party.

The committee's action in the North Dakota situation, he said, was in response to a request from Senator Nye (R., N. D.) that the survey be made in the "cause of clean elections."

Nye was leading Governor William Langer for the republican senatorial nomination by about 15,000 votes when a third of the precincts had reported.

Sheppard told reporters that although Nye did not clearly indicate what use could be made of the information, he assumed the North Dakota senator wished to compare the number of absentee ballots with those cast in previous primaries to determine whether there had been any "ballot box stuffing," by that means.

At the same time, Sheppard told reporters that he did not believe speeches by President Roosevelt, in behalf of candidates in primary elections, would fall within the jurisdiction of the investigating committee.

possible in Spanish government ports.

Third, France was willing to name free ports in western Spain (insurgent-held) where "honest traffic" would have free entry.

"Might" End Raids. The Perth-Ciano conference produced speculations that it might bring an end to air raids on British merchantmen in Spanish waters.

Some diplomatic quarters indicated Great Britain might have made renunciation of her still-inoperative friendship treaty with Italy the price of continued air raids on her shipping.

The treaty, signed April 16, was not to become effective until a "settlement" was reached in Spain but Premier Mussolini recently has sought to put the pact into force without delay.

Gayda said the bombings were fully justified and asserted that "the Spanish command has not bombed British ships but contraband ships."

Any interference from Italy, he said, would be "a contradiction of Spanish independence, which Italy respects and intends to respect."

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), June 29.—(AP)—The battle for Valencia swung today on both flanks of a 50-mile front in eastern Spain, with neither the government nor the insurgents able to gain a decisive advantage.

Generalissimo Franco's forces held the upper hand in the coastal sector where they attempted to break through strong government defenses guarding the important Mediterranean port.
