MAN'S HEART RID OF STONE CASING

ROCHESTER, Minn., July 16.—(AP)—Alec Mortimer Watkins, 27, who traveled 8,000 miles to come here for surgical aid, walked out of a hospital today able to feel his heart beat again after Mayo clinic surgeons had cut away a half-inch casing of stone from that organ.

When Watkins left Melbourne, Australia, last March 17, physicians gave him but six months to live. Today he is looking forward to a normal life.

His father, Allick W. Watkins, told how a Mayo clinic surgeon worked at the calcified pericardium.

The heart, with its hardened casing, was exposed for two hours, and four ribs were resected in the operation which took four hours.

Alternately working three minutes and covering the organ with a warm cloth for three minutes, the surgeon lifted the heart out of the chest cavity part of the time the operation was in progress.
