Much Loss, Little Gain

DURING the past two years, according to figures in a government report, 42,000,000 worker days—days that would have produced needed income—were lost in idleness by workmen as the result of strikes or disputes.

The cost to employers was great but employers also suffered great losses. The entire country suffered, and at a time when general conditions were already bad enough.

And for all of this loss and idleness there is little to show in the way of gains by labor. A large share of the trouble was due solely to a battle between two organization leaders for control of organized labor.

In Oregon we have had a close-up view of the general situation. A report written by Ralph Moody, special prosecutor of the gun cases for the state of Oregon contains the following observations in its summary:

"(1) That the Teamsters International of which Dave Beck of Seattle was the organizer of the 11 western states and British Columbia, and the Portland Teamsters union of which Al Rosser, representative of Beck, was secretary, treasurer, and affiliated unions constituted the key organization, controlling other labor unions and many industries by reason of their control over handling, delivering and transporting of products and commodities on land.

"(2) That a conspiracy was conceived and entered into by Beck and his representative Rosser in Portland to control the destiny of labor and industry in Oregon."

The summary concludes with these paragraphs: "(24) That it is also true that laboring men and women have lost employment through the practice of these labor racketeers calling unnecessary strikes, and will never regain the wages lost.

"(25) That without supplementary legislation to protect the members of labor unions from raids on their treasury, and to protect industry from destruction of property, and to protect the public from the blockading of shipping and commerce and to insure the transportation of products, it is possible that there may be a recurrence of the reign of labor terrorism from which Oregon is now just experiencing a lull."

The report also states that in addition to receiving a salary of $500 a year, Al Rosser made lavish expenditures totaling nearly a quarter of a million dollars, all paid in by laborers, some $12,000 of which could not be explained at all.

Oregon wants no more of the labor racketeering of the Beck and Rosser sort. But to prevent the recurrence that is hinted at, some new legislation is needed for the protection of laborers as well as for the protection of employers against the racketeers. More important even than more laws is the necessity for a state administration that will enforce the law without fear of favor, for the benefit of all.

LIBRARY ANNOUNCES SEVERAL NEW BOOKS

Several new books, which will prove interesting to patrons of the Roseburg public library, recently have been added and now are available, according to Mrs. Charles E. Roberts of the library board.

"Eden on a Country Hill" by Ruth Cross. An abandoned Connecticut farm is changed in a practical way into a delightful home.

"Listen, the Wind!" Anne Morrow Lindbergh takes one episode in their Atlantic survey flight of 1933, the crossing from Africa to South America.

"Our Amazing Earth" by Carroll Lane Fenton is a popular book on the formation of this planet, written in an easy readable style by one of America's foremost geologists.

Those who have enjoyed the works of Daphne Du Maurier will be glad to see "Rebecca" her new novel. The granddaughter of the author of "Fanny Hill" and the daughter of Gerald Du Maurier, an English author, carried on the family name brilliantly in this new work.

"In Hazard" by Richard Hughes. A modern steamship caught in a hurricane in the Caribbean sea. The dean of travel writers, Harry A. Franck, has taken to the air after many years of vagabonding, and his latest book is "Sky Roaming Above Two Continents." He is a keen observer, a clear-headed student, and an authority on international affairs, also a great adventurer always.

An outstanding novel is "My Son, My Son!" by Howard Spring. A dramatic and eventful life story of two fathers and their two sons. One sees much of England in its pages, and the World war as well as the Irish rebellion. Written with simplicity and feeling. It should be widely read.

RECREATION NEWS

becoming dry, especially on the south slopes and in the burns. This condition probably will make the last few days of the hunting season difficult. Reports from the various districts indicate that with the coming of cold weather and snow flurries in the high country the deer are moving down. Hunters with long experience in the Umpqua area are unanimous in the opinion that this has been the best hunting season in years.

FISHING—Fishing is reported to be poor throughout most of the forest. One party recently made a limit catch at Fish Lake, but reported that the cold wind sweeping across the lake made fishing decidedly uncomfortable. No steelhead are now being taken in the North Umpqua, but from the fly-fish section a report states that trout fishing is fair. All streams are low and clear.

ROADS—All gravelled roads are open and in fair condition. Frost is making dirt roads somewhat slippery, but most of them are still open to travel. Chains should be carried.

WEATHER—Heavy frosts every night are reported from all districts, and one inch of snow has fallen at Diamond Lake.

APPRECIATION—This is the final bulletin for the 1938 season, and in closing, officials of the Umpqua forest wish to thank the public for the splendid cooperation that has been given throughout the year. With very few exceptions those who have visited the forest have put into practice the rule of safety that will preserve our trees from their great enemy, fire. Losses on the Umpqua have been inconsequential for the past year.

VFW PLANS SALE OF FORGET-ME-NOTS

At the regular monthly meeting of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, held in the Roseburg armory, final plans were made for the annual Forget-Me-Not sale to be held here November 11 and 12.

Levi White, commander of the local chapter, appointed Harvey Eppstein, past commander, chairman of the sale. Co-workers with Eppstein are: Ward Cummings, Roy Young, Earl Wolf, Arthur Puckett and Dick Preston.

According to Eppstein, the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, call upon the public for help only once each year, during the Forget-Me-Not sale. "The program of the D.A.V.," Eppstein stated, "is to render as far as possible the World War veteran to as good a position as he would have enjoyed had he not been disabled and to make him a better and happier citizen thru sympathetic understanding and of comradely assistance in the solving of his problems. Toward this end, the D.A.V. endeavors to secure fair and just compensation, adequate and proper medical care and honest and profitable employment for those those who are employable."

In addition to a fair and just legislative program and a great rehabilitation and employment service, the D.A.V. through local chapters throughout the length and breadth of the land, extends direct relief and comfort to worthy, needy disabled veterans and their dependents.

To maintain these rehabilitation, employment and direct relief programs, the organization is forced to rely in large part upon funds raised through its Forget-Me-Not sales. It is hoped that the response to the appeal this year will enable them materially to expand their service in this community.

STEEL CO. APPEALS ORDER OF NLRB

CLEVELAND, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Republic Steel Corp. announced it filed today in U. S. circuit court at Philadelphia a petition to review and set aside yesterday's national labor relations board order directing the company to reinstate 5,000 Ohio strikers.

The new order is based on a pretended hearing held Aug. 11, prior to which the labor board had made up its mind and reached a conclusion without affording the company a hearing as to the charges against it. "That procedure, it is claimed (in the petition), denied the company due process of law in violation of the constitution of the United States."
