MARY JO PARKINSON ENJOYING DRAMATICS UNDER MAUDE ADAMS

Miss Mary Joan Parkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parkinson, of this city, is enjoying the study of dramatic art this year (her senior year at Stephens Junior college at Columbia, Missouri, under the direction of the famous actress, Maude Adams. Miss Parkinson had a part in the play, "Alice in Wonderland," which was presented Thanksgiving day and again last week as a benefit affair for charity.

Try-outs for the next play, "Chanticleer" are now in progress and Miss Parkinson has been given a try-out by Miss Adams for the play.

Miss Adams, who was listed in the first Who's Who, published in America, when she was 27 years of age, has gained a national reputation as one of the world's finest actresses. Stephens college drew national attention last year for having Miss Adams on its faculty staff as well as Adolph Bak, former head of the Victorian conservatory who was forced to return to this country because his American citizenship outlaws his teaching in the nationalized German-Austrian state. Stephens college is now in its 105th year.

In an interesting letter sent to friends here, Miss Parkinson relates many enjoyable play rehearsals under the supervision of Miss Adams.
