POET'S CORNER

The following was published in the November number of Reflections.

THE SPECTRE

She came to pace the Widow's Walk,
An object, formless, white as chalk.

Half mist and half reality,
She melted into rock and tree.

Akin to Ascian world she seemed,
As shadowless as something dreamed.

Some evil force had chained her here,
An earth-bound spirit, breeding fear.

A wraith whose substance none might hold—
Mere ectoplasm, pale and cold.

She made no sound, nor did she stay,
But vanished silently away.

—Marjorie Hunt Pettit.

ODDITIES

By the Associated Press.

Photo Fun

BOONVILLE, Ind.—Sheriff Gus Barclay, who has taken up cycling to lose some of his 300 pounds, will put away his bicycle tomorrow, Friday the 13th.

Not that he's superstitious, he said, but he's a little afraid he might fall—and he knows candid camera fans are after him.

Shot in Time

CROTHERSVILLE, Ind.—Shots rang out in the night.

Jesse McQuillen, WPA worker, and his wife and three children awoke to find their home on fire. They fled in their nightclothes.

A passing truck driver, they learned, had seen the blaze and fired his pistol to warm them.

What Next?

KANSAS CITY.—Social security number cards have been chewed by goats, blown away by tornadoes and stepped on by horses, but Manager Hugh P. McTernan of the board field office here got a new jolt this week.

An applicant for a duplicate card whose home had been recorated advised his original card was lost under the wallpaper.

Contented Employes

OGDEN, Utah.—Workmen, excavating for a new city-county building, struck a sulphur spring.

Now, if Mayor Harman Peery has his way, the mineral flow will be piped into the 12-story structure to "promote health for city employes."
