Life Begins Later

"It's a young man's country," we carelessly say. "Youth will be served."

Not that the National Association of Manufacturers is right. There has been no decline in the percentage of industrial employment at the age of 40 since 1923, a survey by the N. A. M. indicated.

Not only that, but the association found that industry rates its older workers "very highly."

In 1928, the percentage of workers between 40 and 49 actually showed a gain. Of total employees reported, 29.43 per cent were in that age group. Even between 50 and 59, the older workers were still accounting for 16.43 per cent of total employment.

Is it possible to get a new job after 40? The same survey had returns from 750 companies indicating that workers of 40 and over added to the payroll in 1927 accounted for 8.4 per cent of their total employment.

"Steadier," more regular in attendance, "more pride and greater interest in their work," were some of the bonuses tossed at older workers by the companies reporting.

Any insurance company will verify that people live longer, on the average, than they used to live. Any social statistics will show that a greater proportion of the population each year is made up of older people.

Nothing could be more natural than to find great numbers of these people between 40 and 50 still engaged in productive work. But in the meantime what is happening to the multitudes of young people who leave school every year?

Many of them are finding it hard to get their first job. Some young men reach the age of 25 or 24 without ever having had a regular job or learned any trade.

The end of school, a couple of years of loafing, a year at a CCC camp, two or three or half a dozen fiddling little jobs at which they learned no skill, nothing of value, and a young man is in his mid-twenties before he has started. His grandfather was a well-grounded workman at his trade by that time.

Life begins later today than it did for grandfathers, but it also ends later. It is just another of the readjustments which apparently must be made in a changing world.

No Wonder

COLLEGE news is often of a sensational or ridiculous nature, and one must dig pretty deep into the stories to uncover the reasons for all the horseplay.

Outside of the fact that youth is youth, there is generally an underlying motive for its headline insanity. Example: The election of heavy John Brennan, 200-pound football player, as "queen" of the University of Michigan last year.

Why should the students vote for a gragger with fat limbs of nice-cold walking the campus? It looks like a publicity stunt.

But, no, Mr. Brennan just moved out Miss Sherman Phillips, a cute freshman dink and it seems Miss Phillips once wrote an article entitled "Why I Hate Men." Bottom line: "You're just a piece of meat. I don't like men. Ah, there it is!"

FRESHMAN LEADERS AT UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

Daily Devotions

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

Much emphasis is laid in the Bible upon the spirit in which a thing is done, and this is especially true of the duty and privilege of giving. St. Paul says that God loveth a cheerful giver; why do you suppose did he pick that one special quality in regard to giving and lay stress upon it? Why did he not say that God loveth a man who gave a great deal? That would indicate this devotion, would it not? Well, it might and it might not. The more we think of it the clearer it becomes that he used the right word when he used cheerful. What use would a grudge-gift be to Him and what good would it do the giver. We thank Thee, O my Father, for the great gifts of Thy providence and Thy grace that have been bestowed down upon us. Forbid that we should be unappreciative or ungrateful. May we always be responsive to Thy love, Amen.

CLASS IN DRAFTING TO START MONDAY

The evening class in drafting and blue print reading, recently organized under the state department of adult education is to begin Monday, Jan. 23 at 7 p. m. at the Junior high school building. It was announced today by Dr. A. Melis, training instructor in the local high school. The class will meet two nights each week, for a period of 12 weeks, providing a total of 48 hours of instruction. The group will be divided into two sections, one for fundamentals of drafting and the other for blue print reading and interpretation. The course is limited to persons engaged in work in building and mechanical trades. Ten young men have signed for the course and there is room for five more students. An evening course also is being conducted at the Junior high school building each Tuesday and Thursday evening under the supervision of K. H. Smith, who is teaching shorthand (offering and both brush and pen work. Both beginners and advanced students may enter for either six or twelve weeks courses. Any employed worker in a retail store is eligible to membership. Times classes, sponsored by the state department for vocational education, are held in cooperation with the Roseburg school district.

Better Watch Your Thoughts, Now

It pays to be careful with your thoughts when this machine's around, for through it, it is possible to "fingerprint" your mind. It's the invention of Dr. Lee E. Travis, California psychologist, left. Diagram at bottom shows "fingerprinted" thought waves.

SENIORS WIN IN YELL, SONG VYING

Pep Assembly, Initiation Also Occur at Roseburg High Periods.

The senior class of Roseburg Senior high school won first place in both the interclass yell and song contests sponsored Friday in the senior high assembly. The sophomore class was second and the juniors third. The rules specified that each class was to be represented by twenty-five of its members; that the words and music of the songs were to be original; the yell was to be original; the songs and yells were to be of the pep or fight nature to be used at games or assemblies. The points won in the contest go toward the interclass cup; hence, the rivalry was very keen. Judges for the contest were Mrs. Paul Geddes, Mrs. Robert Kelley and Mrs. Oscar Herrick. The orchestra played several numbers during the assembly and when the decision of the contest was announced, the senior class taught the new song and yell to the rest of the student body.

A special pep assembly was held at 9:40 o'clock in the gym where the new song was again practiced and other school yells and songs were given by the assembly under the leadership of the pep club members and the song and yell leaders. Coach Jim Watts made a short announcement concerning the name with Marshall and the members of the team were asked to stand and say a word or two. The rest of the assembly was turned over to the initiating of the new "R" club members. Three of the boys were dressed as mighty warrior braves, and the other four were decked out in grandly decorated outfits. Each initiate was called to the front of the assembly and asked questions and made to wear a huge advertising sign of some local store. Those initiated included: Virgil Sanders, Jack Parrott, Don Perry, Ed Nordyke, Keith Kennedy, Bert Shoemaker, Wayne Albertus. These boys are all first year football lettermen.

MUSIC, PLAYLETS ENTERTAIN JUNIORS

Chaire Kennedy played several interesting piano selections at the opening of the Roseburg Junior high school assembly Friday during the activity period. Two playlets under the student direction by the following Junior high students: Dale Slater, Jack Maulding, Betty Schrimpf, Frederica Hamilton, Pat Burr. The rest of the program was given over to the faculty, who put on a pep preview of the Ashland-Roseburg Junior high game. The faculty members were divided up into two teams, with Karl Conner, coach of the Ashland team, and "Dod" Turner coaching the Roseburg team. It showed the teams on the floor just before the game and the coaches were giving their respective teams a pep talk. The rest of the game was carried on back stage and transmitted to the student body by use of the loud speaker. The program was interspersed with school yells and songs led by the school song and yell leaders. At the close of the fun assembly, Coach Turner made a few remarks concerning the game with Ashland. The student band, under the direction of "Snap" Gilmore, played throughout the assembly.

ROD AND GUN CLUB SETS OPEN MEETING

The annual open meeting of the Roseburg Rod and Gun club will be held at the Knights of Pythias lodge hall, starting at 8 p. m. Monday, Jan. 23. The meeting is open to all members and friends. Visiting sportsmen and all persons interested in wild life conservation. It is anticipated that there will be several representatives present from the state game commission, as well as groups of visitors from other sportsmen's clubs of the county and state. Motion pictures dealing with wild life and conservation will be shown by Frank B. Wile, game supervisor. Talks will be made by various sportsmen and open discussions will be held regarding conservation methods and pending and proposed fish and game legislation. A free Dutch lunch will be provided by the Roseburg club.
