Chemical "War" Defense Program Takes Shape Here; Public Participation Asked

Members of the Roseburg state police force and a "Maiden from Mars," above, are interested observers in the gas mask drill being explained by local reserve officers in preparation for the "Defense Against Chemical Attack" contact camp scheduled for Roseburg February 11 and 12. More than 100 reserve officers are expected to attend the two-day camp. Left to right are Capt. H. C. Church, chemical warfare officer; Sergeant Paul Parsons, Grayce Rasche, stenographer for the state highway department; Patrolmen S. M. Bullis and Clyde I. Fisk, and Lt. Waynard Bell, president Umpqua chapter, R. O. A.

Final plans for the "defense against chemical attack" contact camp for reserve officers and attached personnel of the 32nd Infantry regiment, scheduled for Roseburg next Saturday and Sunday, are rapidly crystallizing, and advance reports indicate that more than 100 officers will be in attendance. Major C. S. Petee, unit instructor of Eugene, in charge of the two-day camp, announced today.

Intense interest in this unusual camp is manifested by the large number of officers who have indicated they will be in Roseburg for the two-day period. This is the first camp of its type ever planned at which the public has been invited to participate in the various phases of training.

Every person in Roseburg and Douglas county, if he or she so desires, will be given the opportunity to don the latest in gas protective masks and try them out in real gas and smoke of various kinds under the supervision of trained gas officers from the regular army and especially trained reserve officers. More than 100 masks of various types are being brought here for the demonstrations. The experience, absolutely harmless though possibly a bit discomforting for a moment or two, will be unique to say the least.

A conference on "Debunking Chemical Warfare" to be conducted by Captain John F. Cramer in the armory at 3:15 p. m. Saturday, February 11, should be of great interest to the general public and all will be welcome at that time. Following the conference a limited number will be given individual instruction in the use of gas masks.

The scheduled exercise at the airport at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, February 12, should also be of interest to the local citizenry. A smoke exercise is being planned for that hour which will be rather spectacular. If possible, an opportunity will be provided for anyone so desiring to find out what a mild concentration of tear gas feels like.

Members of Umpqua chapter, R. O. A., host organization for the visiting officers, are scheduling their annual military ball at the armory Saturday evening, February 11, and it will be open to the general public. An interesting gas decontamination demonstration under direction of Capt. H. C. Church, C. W. Res., is being planned as one of the highlights of the evening. Those desiring tickets to the ball may secure same by contacting members of the chapter. Arrangements for the dance are under the supervision of Capt. John Irving, assisted by W. A. O. R. Hess, Lt. James K. Watts, Lt. Edward Jacobs and Lt. Carl Corners.

Arrangements for the city-wide blackout coming at an hour to be designated by signal also scheduled for sometime early Saturday evening, the exact minute will be known only by the signal, probably the city's fire siren, are rapidly being formulated. Blackouts of cities are defensive measures against possible air raids and the one being planned will be a demonstration of its use in a simulated attack by air.
