A SHIRRED SHOULDER DESIGN FOR YOUR NEW "GOOD BLACK" BY CAROL DAY

This is a dress you'll thoroughly enjoy for club affairs, bridge, afternoon and luncheons, and for general wear. The detailing you see is all up top. It has shirred shoulders and the gathers above the fitted waistline, to give bosom fullness. The skirt is slim and plain, with lifted waistline in the front, a detail that helps to flatten your diaphragm.

The side belt, fastened in the back, make it possible to adjust the waistline to just the slimmest you want.

This dress is a basic type that you can vary with different necklines, brooches and clips. It is the perfect way to make your indispensable "good black dress" and it will be pretty, too, in small figured prints. For this, choose thin wool, flat crepe or faille.

Pattern 8320 is designed for sizes 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36. With long sleeves, size 26 requires 4 5/8 yards of 39-inch material; with short, 4 1/2 yards.

The new FALL and WINTER PATTERN BOOK, 32 pages of attractive designs for every size and every occasion is now ready. Photographs show dresses made from these patterns being worn.

A feature you will enjoy. Let the charming designs in this new book help you in your sewing. One pattern and the new Fall and Winter Pattern Book—25 cents. Pattern or book alone—15 cents.

POET'S CORNER

I WONDER
By ROSEMARY LARSEN

I do not marry you as eighteen would,
Thoughts and emotions in a bright, hushed swirl,
Nor yet as twenty-two years more yet—Deeper eyes, with shadows of the girl
Who sees each moment as an entity
And looks not back nor forward
doubtfully.

I see this moment pointing ways to come,
I know that all things precious come at cost
And contemplate our readiness to pay
And fear a little that some things be lost.
And with that part of me outside
Myself I thrill
Wonder if you were meant for me at all.

STRECKER BATTLES DEPORTATION PLAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Joseph G. Strecker of Hot Springs, Ark., told the supreme court today the evidence was "insufficient" to sustain a deportation warrant against him on the ground the communist party of which he was once a member advocates the overthrow of the government by force.

Whitney North Seymour of New York, counsel for the Austrian-born Strecker, filed his brief in advance of arguments before the high court, probably Friday.

"Even if it be assumed, contrary to the fact, that the communist party was an organization advocating the overthrow of the government by force," he asserted, "the statute does not authorize the deportation of one who had ceased to be a member substantially before commencement of deportation proceedings."

The government, which appealed to the tribunal from the fifth federal circuit court, seeks Strecker's deportation under a 1918 statute barring aliens who are members of any organization advocating the overthrow of the government by force or violence.

Bridges Case Affected

Strecker came to the United States in 1912, joined the communist party in November, 1932, and stopped paying his dues three months later.

The litigation is expected to have an effect on possible deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, Australian-born west coast CIO leader.

Chairman Martin Dies of a house committee investigating un-American activities, yesterday filed a brief as "friend of the court" in which he asserted the government "is entitled to present to the court the inherent constitutional right of congress to protect the United States against the dangers incident to the admission and residence within the United States of undesirable foreigners."
