POET'S CORNER

WRITE TO YOUR MOTHER TODAY

Write a line today to your mother dear. It will show her you are happy. Remember she's all the mother you have—every day by day.

So write to your mother today. Tell her you love her best of all. Tell her that in the end it will pay. Tell her that her heart is at ease.

And listen to the love song she sings—Of the dearest friend you have on earth.

So write to your mother today.

There are many friends you fondly love. Remember, however, that only one mother is all the world.

Write to her while she is here.

—J. Margaret Ashcroft.

Motorlogging Lincoln County Beaches

This newspaper is co-operating with the Oregon State Motor association and the Oregonian in sponsoring a series of motor cruises designed to stimulate travel throughout the Pacific northwest. The following article is condensed from a full-page article appearing in The Sunday Oregonian May 7.

There's a certain place in Oregon where the spectacle of miracle after miracle has given them the familiar quality of commonplace.

Not miracles worked by some agency of the supernatural, but miracles, nevertheless. These are the miracles worked by man's inventive genius, the wonders brought about by smooth highways, by the restless urge of the American to go adventuring into new places.

To visit the scene of some of these wonders the motorlog automobile traveled over the Salmon River cut to the Pacific ocean beaches of north Lincoln county, where towns and resorts have risen like mushrooms within the past decade.

Here a once desolate expanse of seashore has become a gay, busy playground for thousands of Oregonians and their visitors from other states. Here, because this country is so new, a man may be an "old settler" and still be in the prime of life. He may be a pioneer and date his adventuring back but 20 years or even less.

Road's End at the north, near Weona beach, Brax Mar, Ocean Lake, De Lazo, the summer homes along the shores of Devil's lake, Nelson and Taft have a resident population of 2000 or more persons. The summer and holiday population will run into the thousands and endless parade of tourists up and down the Oregon Coast highway bring the region's visitors into the hundreds of thousands.

Seaside, Taft and Clifton City, Kerville, Gleneden, Lincoln beach, DiPue Bay, all sharing this new prosperity and all owing their existence to the Oregon Coast highway.

While their popularity has spread through Oregon and up and down the Pacific coast, their fame has spread across the nation. DePoe bay, because of its picturesque beauty, the romance suggested by its rock-sheltered, tiny harbor and fleet of trolling boats, has become a byword among travelers, a spot better known than some of the big harbors along the Pacific coast.

Taft has attracted nationwide fame with its annual Red Head round-up, a contest that attracts red-heads, kids and boys, and grown-ups, too, from far and near.

Seaside Administration Facility veterans.

Members present were Irene Jones, Rhoda Stahlaker, Virginia Rosemond, Edith Presnell, Laura Lee, Ethel Ann Van Vleet, Gertrude Pett, Mrs. Noyce, Nanner Green, Wanda Jean, Dinschield, Elaine Rhoden, Tom Portawatomie group, and those present from Clifton group were Frances Moore, Virginia Allen, Ayle Hampton, Margaret Ann Carter, Jean Ashworth, Barbara Hocking, Dortha Brooks and Melva Jean Penny. A sheet of the meeting was Louise Morrison.

Miss Elaine Brown, president, conducted the Junior Woman's club meeting Monday evening at the clubhouse at which time Miss Ray Stephens, chairman of the international Relations group, had charge of the program. The club expressed appreciation to the Roseburg merchants for their interest in the Oregon clubwomen, as a part of the money was paid to the local club. The Fine Arts department invited all club members to attend a meeting Monday night at 7:30 at the home of Betty Shoemaker to hear Miss Helen Casey give a talk on the theatre.

An executive council meeting was announced for next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock to be held at the home of Mrs. Adrian Bowen. Those present were Mrs. Walter Fisher, Mrs. R. H. Hocking, Mrs. Ernest Pearson, Mrs. Louis K. Pies, Mrs. T. M. Dunn, Mrs. L. C. Latham, Mrs. Leon Yearwood, Mrs. Brower Mills, Mrs. Jack Sukodort, Mrs. C. E.
