THOSE who are seeking fields where government and business may cooperate without clashing, with a view to further stimulating the business revival which must come this year, might look a little more closely at the federal housing administration.

For the past few months about 2500 new single-family houses have been begun every week under FHA auspices. But not with government money—with the same private capital which is currently accused of being over-owed.

By April 29, 1939, the FHA had written insurance of almost a billion and a half dollars on small home mortgages, cooperating with 7000 lending institutions, advancing their funds, employing men, causing materials to be bought.

Big money! But it is not money. It is credit. A temporary reserve of $25,000,000 has been sufficient to cover possible losses, which have been small. In fact, of 557,000 houses with FHA-insured mortgages, only 290 have "bounced back," according to FHA officials.

Result? Perhaps as many as 8,000,000 citizens have in one way or another, by new homes or by repairs and improvements, bettered their living arrangements.

The construction industry, railroads, factories, mines, lumber companies, equipment builders, the housing institutions themselves, have all profited. The building industry leads such recovery as has yet been achieved. Efforts are now being made to increase the scope of FHA at this season before it closes.

So much for housing. But isn't this technique worth looking into? The FHA establishes standards for its work. It guarantees against loss. But private money and private initiative do the actual work.

May not this be a key to apply to the closed locks of other fields?

So many of the efforts to stimulate directly certain fields of production have foundered in the red tape and stultification or impractical theories of the best-intentioned administrators.

How the government stands behind the private producers with a hand on the shoulder, and says, "Go ahead!" It seems to have worked better than getting out in front and saying, "Stand aside! Let me do this!" or booting the entrepreneur in the back and telling him, "Get in there!"

Cooperation which has left both parties happy has succeeded where coercion failed and left both parties sore. There seems to be a valuable key here. Maybe it could be tried in some other fields.

It's as if we should invite some fool to southern Oregon for a duck dinner or a Rooster or Turkey and then had to send to Los Angeles for the ducks or the salmon.

Would our laws be real?

FORTUNATELY someone came through just in the nick of time and enough Quebec trout were obtained to feed the royal party. The American fish, we are told by the watchful conservationists, were "fed to newspapermen, detectives and others awaiting the royal arrival."

TWO thousand more birds were required for the menu. There's small, about the size of a robin, and visit the mouth of the St. Lawrence when the ice goes out. This year the ice was late and the snow birds didn't come TILL THE LAST MOMENT. Heart failure (probably thrombosis) the boss cook. But fate was kind, and the snow birds came at last.

At that, the king would doubtless have preferred a cut of good roast beef.

DOWNPOUR HALTS TENNIS MATCHES

A downpour of rain interrupted the opening round of matches of the Oregon interscholastic tennis tournament scheduled to begin at Reed College in Portland Thursday. The matches were made up Friday and Saturday. The Roseburg high school doubles team of Charles Church and Clyde Carstens was one of the entries favored to win the doubles crown. Carstens drew Henry Howard of Eugene for his opponent in the first round of singles matches.
