"Pygmalion" on Sunday Bill

The first George Bernard Shaw story to ever reach the screen, "Pygmalion," opening a three-day run Sunday at the Indian theater with Leslie Howard and Wendy Hiller, the outstanding star discovery of the season, in the two leading roles, has been recorded the highest praise of any film play of recent years.

Witty and tingling with the satiric humor of the man who has received more attention than any modern playwright, "Pygmalion" tells of the highly laughable circumstances that happen to a man who takes a girl off the streets—out of the gutter—and in the short period of 30 days, makes a "lady" of her, to hobnob with royalty. But when her period of grace is up and she is supposed to go back to the gutter, then the fun starts.
