other way is known to determine this.

Everyone has a chance to support those things that make for control of the disease. For instance, there is a law against spitting on the street or in public buildings, but education and public opinion have had a more potent effect than the law. It is often said that everyone has a little tuberculosis and therefore it is nothing to fear. This is an erroneous statement, as, according to Dr. Bellinger, the person who has a little tuberculosis might be said to be packing dynamite. Education can stamp out tuberculosis.

Following Dr. Bellinger's talk the meeting was closed with group singing, led by Mrs. R. H. Mercer, accompanied by Mrs. Homer Graw.

The reception committee included Mrs. C. G. Ferrier, Mrs. Ned Dixon, Mrs. Roy O. Young, Mrs. J. D. Osborn, and Mrs. Wilbur Culp. The supper committee included Mrs. Karl Wiley, Mrs. Willis Myers, Mrs. George Churchill and Mrs. G. M. Krell.

POET'S CORNER

OREGON TREES

By G. M. LEEPER
I see them there
Beneath the morning sun,
And I smile to know
What God has done.

He has spread the trees
With their fragrant smell
Upon the hills
He formed so well.

With their gentle slope
And shaded top,
To calm the sunbeams
Where they drop.

Trees across the mountains,
Trees where waters fall,
Clumps of pussy willows
Where summer breezes call.

Little bushes with berries,
Where the tall trees lean,
Make a rich carpet
Peaceful and clean.

Trees beside the river
Above the gentle swell,
God has made them all
And done his work well.
