1939 Motor Cruise: Anthony Lakes

Plans have been made to erect a 120-guest lodge on the shore of the lake.

This newspaper is co-operating with the Oregon State Motor association and The Oregonian to sponsor a series of motor cruises designed to stimulate travel throughout the Pacific northwest. The following article is condensed from a full-page article appearing in The Sunday Oregonian June 11.

Anthony lakes recreation area in the Blue mountains, 35 miles from Roseburg, is getting ready for summer vacationists recently when an Oregonian-Oregon State Motor association motorlog party, on a tour of eastern Oregon, visited the district with F. G. Whitney, assistant supervisor of the Whitman national forest.

Plans have been made to develop the area by erection of a 120-guest lodge on the shore of Anthony lake, the largest of seven lakes within a radius of two miles. Approval has been given by the chief of the forest service on condition that local sponsors raise $30,000. The WPA, it is expected, will furnish the rest of the money and build the lodge.

The lake district is an ideal location for a recreational development, the motorloggers found. In winter it provides skiing, skating and hunting; in summer, fishing, boating, hiking and horseback riding.

The lakes lie at an altitude of 7,000 to 8,000 feet and Gansight peak—so named because of a notch in its top—rises 8,600 feet behind Anthony lake where the lodge would be built. Snow stays on it and other peaks until well into the summer and the majestic Wallows may be seen in the distance from higher altitudes in the area easily reached by trails.

Seven thousand persons visited the spot last summer and 5,000 last winter, the forest service estimated. With a modern lodge there, thousands more could be accommodated. The area is easily reached from the larger cities of eastern Oregon, being 35 miles from Baker, 45 from LaGrande, 190 from Pendleton and 120 from Ontario.
