POET'S CORNER

TO LOVE THEE EVER-MORE

By G. M. Leeper
I thought one day
That love was a flower
That you plucked to fade
Within the passing hour.

I thought that love
Was never real,
Not a living thing
That heart could feel.

Not flesh and blood
To bleed and ache,
Or shrivel like a rose
That kindness forsake.

I thought that love
Would only waste
When given not its share
Of living taste.

But I found that love
Could live on hate,
Through tortured death
And hold its fate.

Unchained and firm,
To death's wide door,
And turn its smiling lips
And love three evermore.

PET PARADE HERE LIVELY AND NOISY

To an accompaniment furnished by the school pep band, a half dozen dog fights, and an assortment of barnyard noises, several hundred boys and girls of Roseburg and vicinity joined Saturday afternoon in the second annual pet parade, sponsored by Henninger's Market.

Dogs predominated among the pets displayed, while cats, geese, kids, goldfish, rabbits, canaries, horses, turtles, and poultry, made up the largest assortment of pets to be shown in any of the several previous pet parades held in Roseburg. Liberal prizes were awarded the participating youngsters by the sponsors.

Principal prize awards were made as follows: Open sweepstakes for boys—$2.50, to John Morgan and Alvin Hills, Roseburg, for miner's pack outfit on Shetland pony. Open sweepstakes for girls—$2.50 to Patsy Adair of Green with trained beaver. Second prize—Patsy Carson and Evelyn Meyers, Roseburg, kittens in cage as "man eating tigers." Third prize—Susan Jean Mutschenski, Roseburg, with finest goldfish. Fourth prize—Elaune Konopatski, Roseburg, goat with deer horns attached to represent deer.

NEW TRIAL SET FOR DAVIS BROTHERS

The re-trial of Irving and Joe Davis, brothers of Winchester, charged with fishing by illegal methods, will be held June 26, Justice of the Peace R. W. Marsters reported today. The jury which heard the first trial of the case last week failed to reach an agreement. The second trial is being postponed until next week, due to the fact Judge Marsters will be absent for the balance of the week, as he plans to leave Tuesday to attend Masonic grand lodge in Portland.

DOG OWNERS FACE LICENSE DEMANDS

Dog owners who have failed to procure the required licenses will have one week in which to pay the necessary fee before action is started to complaints filed in the justice court, Judge R. W. Marsters reported today. The dog control commission, it was stated, has prepared more than 80 complaints against delinquent owners, and is planning to issue charges against 250 more as soon as the necessary information is available unless the licenses are paid within the time limit set.

HALF-YEAR TRUCK PERMITS AVAILABLE

Sheriff Percy Webb received authority today to start issuance of half-year truck licenses, starting June 15. The license is applicable only on trucks and does not apply to vehicles bearing the $5 annual fee.
