

SLUMP PROLONGED BY IDLE DEPOSITS

CLEVELAND, June 15.—(AP)—Col. Leonard P. Ayres declared today banking figures "continue furnishing evidence that it is deficient business purchasing, and not deficient individual consumer purchasing, that is mainly responsible for protracting this depression."

Writing in the monthly business bulletin of the Cleveland Trust Co., of which he is a vice-president, the statistician-economist said:

"As a nation we have spent in this depression many billions of public and private funds to increase and spread individual purchasing power. We have done it by advancing wage rates, paying bonus money to veterans and farmers, by lavish outlays for public works, and through huge spending for relief benefits."

"It long ago became evident that as these funds are spent by the individual recipients, they flow into business channels, and are used by business men in part to sustain slow-speed business operations, and in large measure to build up bank balances. They are not actively stimulating revival or rapidly reducing unemployment. Instead they are accumulating in the banks as demand deposits which are largely those of business men and of corporations."

Townsend Plans Retaliation For Broken Promises

By BRUCE CATTON

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Dr. Francis E. Townsend is going full steam ahead with a smashing attack to send back to private life all of the congressmen who voted against the Townsend bill after previously having accepted Townsend support.

He is undertaking to do this through a carefully-planned maneuver which will, he believes, have a direct effect at the polls in the next election.

"Flying squadrons" of Townsend club organizers are being sent into the field. They will work by congressional districts, taking selected districts in turn, covering them thoroughly and aiming to establish a short order from 50 to 60 new clubs in each district. Work has already got under way in southern Illinois, and Texas is the next state in line; thence the squadrons will move into the middle west and New England.

In each case, the organizers will select some district represented by a congressman who is looked on by the Townsends as a turncoat—that is, one who received Townsend support at the last election but voted for the defeat of the Townsend bill when it came up in the house the other day.

Got His Count of Noses

Dr. Townsend doesn't know, off-hand, just how many of these there he'll have to check his records, he says. He recalls that 151 members of this congress were elected with Townsend support. Of the 97 who actually voted for the bill, quite a few were members who had received no Townsend support and had made no pledge; the doctor suspects that if all his "noses" had voted his way his bill would have received upwards of 175 votes.

Meanwhile, he is not discouraged by the bill's defeat. He says he got all he expected to get—a count of noses. He knows now whom to sharpen his knife for. And, meanwhile, he says his organizational work is booming.

During May, before the new flying squadrons were organized, 699 new Townsend clubs were organized. This makes a total of 2000 new clubs since the first of the year, he says. The 25-cent membership cards are now being signed at a rate of 6000 per day; about half of these are renewals of old memberships, and the rest represent new members. During one ten-day period in a recent month 131 new clubs were organized in communities which had never had any Townsend clubs before.

The national convention of the Townsends is scheduled for Indianapolis, June 22. Dr. Townsend predicts this will be just about the biggest political convention ever held in America; there will be upwards of 14,000 delegates, he says, and several times that many members who are not delegates but who want to listen in on the proceedings.

He calls it a "political convention" vividly. For he is giving serious consideration to the thought of launching a third political party.

Here, You Dial Your Own Time

Seaside, Oregon, officials have solved the problem of how bathers may tell time without the risk of wearing a wristwatch in the surf. A properly oriented sundial, 10-feet wide, has been painted on the boardwalk. To get the time, a bather steps in the center, sees the hour of the day by her shadow.

tain their fool reactionary attitude, there is only one thing to do—shove them out of the way," he says. "Naturally, it would expedite matters if we could use the party machinery that already exists. The way is open to both of 'em. The one that'll go the farthest our way is the one we'll listen to."

"We consider them both mighty poor material on which to build, but once we get hold of them we'll fix 'em over to suit ourselves. Each party needs repair, you know, and patching up."

Since he is looking ahead to the time when he will control one of the dominant political parties in the United States, Dr. Townsend naturally realizes that he will eventually have to formulate a platform dealing with many other matters than old age pensions. He isn't ready yet to go into details as to what that platform will be like.

"This is a preliminary step toward an entire revolution in American politics," he says. "The profound effect our policy would have would inevitably lead to a new type of civilization. What that would be like I will leave to your own conjecture. I have my own dream."

Says Congressmen Jittery
Meanwhile, the doctor is amused by reports that the congressmen are still talking about the Townsend bill vote and are wondering what the results of it are going to be when they get back home. "They're actually jittery over there," he says. "They've got their heads together whispering, wondering what the devil they did."

He got his biggest kick out of a cartoon published in a Washington paper the day after the vote. It showed the ghost of the Townsend bill fading away before the eyes of a disturbed congressman, wagging an admonitory finger and saying, "I'll be back."

"That expresses it perfectly," he says. "We'll be back."

FISH PACKERS GET AWARD OF DAMAGES

PORTLAND, Ore., June 14.—(AP)—Federal Judge McCulloch granted the Columbia River Packers' association damages and a permanent injunction today against the Pacific Coast Fishermen's union for interfering with the sale of fish.

The packers complained the union withheld sales because they had been denied an exclusive contract.

The judge allowed $1800 damages, triple the actual loss claimed. He ruled the commerce between the plaintiff and the defendant came within the jurisdiction of the federal anti-trust laws.

Henry Drummond, the Scotch professor, spoke every Sunday evening to nearly two thousand college men. At the close of the service he would come out of the pulpit and stand close to the altar and ask quietly: "Men, do you mean business?" Is your religion to be a business, or simply a plaything. Too much evil has happened in this world because Christian people did not mean business, our religion being only a Sunday affair. But religion should be a seven-days-a-week affair, and not a plaything to be taken out and played with one day out of seven. If the Christian men and women of America really meant business, what a transformation would take place. And how rapidly the great evils would disappear and this world of ours would become a veritable paradise, because the "desert would rejoice and blossom as a rose, the rough place smooth, and the crooked places straight and the ransomed of the Lord come with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads." Our Heavenly Father, we ask Thy forgiveness for our indifference, and cold-heartedness. Stir within our souls a greater desire to do Thy will, and live more perfectly before our fellow man. Amen.
