

TRAFFIC SAFETY ON JULY FOURTH URGED

"Let's be alive on the fifth!" With this war cry, a campaign to cut down traffic accidents during the coming Fourth of July period is being waged by Earl Snell, secretary of state, who today issued a statement calling upon every citizen in the state to participate in this battle against careless driving.

Snell enlisted the aid of all safety councils throughout the state, pointing out that if an intensive educational campaign were carried on in every Oregon community, the state would go through the holiday period with a great saving of lives and reduction of property damage.

On the Fifth of July last year Oregon counted 475 traffic accidents which took five lives and injured 118 persons during the first four days of that month, Snell reminds; then asks: Why, on the Fifth of July this year, is it possible Oregon again will count the number of lives snuffed out, the number of its citizens maimed and the number of cars wrecked during the Fourth of July holiday period?

"Simply because in some instances individuals do not stop to consider the rights of others, do not remember to make inspections of equipment which would reveal mechanical defects, and do not exercise the simple caution in driving which would prevent an accident."

With the car in perfect running order, the responsibility for the safety of its passengers and others using highway facilities rests with the driver and in this connection, these ten suggestions were listed:

1—Never pass a car unless you are certain there is ample room. This precludes passing on curves, hills or other places where the view ahead is obstructed.

2—Slow down when approaching all intersections, including private driveways, so that you have your car under complete control in case an emergency stop is necessary.

3—Slow down when approaching any child or other pedestrian and thus be prepared for the unexpected.

4—Stop on red traffic light and remain stationary until the light has turned green. Don't rush the amber light.

5—Come to a dead stop at stop signs in order to give the car on the through street the right-of-way.

6—If you are fatigued, don't drive. Let someone else have the wheel or pull off to one side of the road and take a short nap.

7—Slow down to compensate for slippery pavements.

8—Slow down when driving at night. Dim your lights so the other fellow will not face the hazard of your glaring headlights.

9—Always drive at a speed that will enable you to stop within the assured clear distance ahead.

10—Remember your motor manners. A blaring horn is no substitute for caution and attempting to bluff a more timid driver may prove hazardous to both of you. Courtesy costs nothing and may save a life.
