POET'S CORNER

CASCADE ENCHANTMENT

By DEAN E. NAVE
Listen please while I tell you a story.
A story of beauty sublime.
About a picture of old Mother Nature
That was painted by old Father Time.

Is it about the great Cascade mountains
All dressed in such gorgeous hues,
With its forests of pine, fir and cedar
And traversed by those rivers so blue.

You may dream of great artists' paintings
And of pictures that hang on your walls
But there is nothing can equal the beauty
And sparkle of those great waterfalls.

As you gaze o'er the lakes in the sunset
At scenes the great artist has planned
You'll be spellbound by unsurpassed beauty
You must see it or you can't understand.

You have heard of the mighty Columbia
And the McKenzie roaring down to the sea
They are both rare pictures of splendor
That God put there for us all to see.

Oh come and see your Cascade mountains
For these just cannot come to see you.
Oh come take a stroll through enchantment
All painted in such gorgeous hues.

Oh come take a stroll so enchanting
Among the trees and flowers you love
Then when you lay down to sleep
Your dreams will go soaring above.

appear in most cases to be comfortably covered against their immediate contract requirements and are disposed to wait for the market to settle. Growers, on the other hand, are inclined to resist lower prices and so an impasse has been reached for the moment, where little business results.

"One outstanding sale is reported in Wyoming early this week of good staple fine wool at 23 1/2 cents, fully 68 cents, clean, landed Boston; otherwise only little drab lots of sales have been made, especially in New Mexico ground 61-63 cents, clean, landed Boston mostly for fair French combing wools. In the bright wool states a very little medium wool is being sold at 29 cents, delivered, for merchantable wool.

"There is little change in the manufacturing end of the market new orders being slow, although deliveries on old contracts are good.

"Foreign markets are firm, Brisbane closed the Australian season Thursday, with prices against the buyer and Germany and Japan keen.

FIRE HITS FACTORY SECTION OF TOWN

TRUCKEE, Calif., June 30.—(AP)—Fire which destroyed virtually the entire factory section of Hobart Mills, abandoned lumber town 12 1/2 miles north of here, was brought under control early today.

The fire, of undetermined origin, also burned over some 600 acres of adjoining reforested and cut-over timberland.

The fire consumed the box factory, the sawmill, the light and power plant, sheds, car barns, 80,000 feet of salvaged insect lumber, and numerous smaller structures.

The town portion of the camp, consisting of the boarding house, post office, store and residences, escaped the flames.

"GOING AFTER IT" POLICY STRESSED

Only Achievement Pathway Pointed Out in Chamber of Commerce Report.

The importance of consistent effort for community benefit is outlined in the monthly bulletin of the Roseburg chamber of commerce, distributed today by Secretary W. C. Harding. Pointing out the work the chamber is doing, Mr. Harding reports some of the recent activities and future plans as follows:

The visit of Governor Sprague and members of the highway commission was of vital importance to this area and time will prove the truth of this statement.

The only way our chamber of commerce knows how to get results is by vigorously going out after things we need. Some of our citizens voice the thought that improvements will drop into our laps without effort upon our part. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Without individual and collective work, we as a community, or even as a state, could easily dry up and blow away. Things we want do not just happen—they have to be worked for.

How far would we have gotten in the cooperative commercial and turkey business, each worth five hundred thousand dollars per year to our area, had we not aided our hen and turkey growers some ten or twelve years ago, when the young industry most needed our help?

At least twenty-five joint meetings of dairymen and milk distributors have been held in our office during the past six years. The result today being orderly marketing and profit, instead of chaos and loss. For three years prune growers' members of this organization, and others in interest, worked with every diligence for better prices to prune growers. As a direct result of these coordinated efforts, the prune growers of Douglas county received increased prices for their product of fifty thousand dollars per year for three years.

How about the Saar Pencil Stat factory? It didn't just drop down from the skies. We worked for its establishment in Roseburg.

We unitedly brought a Veterans facility to our city with a present personal payroll of two hundred and sixty thousand dollars per year and the institution gives promise of developing into a thousand-dollar facility within the next few years. You all realize how we worked for it.

Eastern Oregon Link Looms
The general public knows little of our innumerable appearances before the state highway commission and Portland office of the forest service in behalf of the North Umpqua road and improvements to our division of the Pacific highway. Had your chamber of commerce committees taken these important business matters into consideration for granted, instead of about twelve hundred thousand dollars spent on 99 within the last five years, we would have received little or nothing as other sections of Oregon are on their toes stressing their highway money needs.

Thorough diligence on the part of the North Umpqua improvement trustees, our chamber of commerce highway committee, aided by Umpqua Forester V. V. Harpman, the North Umpqua road gives promise of being opened up into eastern Oregon this fall and will then become a part of Oregon's highway system, to be ultimately built into a great commercial highway.

By going after them we have brought many first class state conventions to our city. Few of them would have come voluntarily as every city in Oregon is eager to entertain these people and each city urges its convention attractions.

However, why further stress the "going after what we need" thought, except to say, it's fundamental if we expect to get things done? During the past ten years downy chamber of commerce has analyzed scores of proposals. Many we adopted and put over. Some were definitely tabled and others deferred for future action. At this moment, our committees have under consideration several things that give promise of lasting benefit to our city. Virtually every phase of our civic and economic life has been carefully analyzed during the past years. We have worked out some of our problems but many yet remain. If you have constructive ideas, let us have them. There is ample room for every live wire Roseburg citizen to fit into this Roseburg chamber of commerce work program somewhere. But remember: We stress the word WORK.
