Daily Devotions

DR. CHARLES A. EDWARDS

The test to which Daniel and his associates submitted following his daring decision in most impressive. The confidence they had in the outcome was not based on scientific data but on sound personal experience. They knew that excessive curve telltale lines on the eyes and the face of the dispirited, so that all who come may read. The man of the world is often embarrassed and discovered when dark visages forms show themselves at the windows and grime at passers-by. These signs are begotten of lust, and have cunning ways of revealing the condition of the mind. In similar manner, clean thoughts, chaste ideals, and wholesome living give grace and power, and distinction to face and bearing. Dear Father, feed us with the bread of Heaven, that we may hunger no more. Make us discreet and give us heavenly grace. May we always choose the virtuous side, that we may see God. Amen.

Major-General Charles H. Martin, ex-governor, came out for Garner last week.

An Ill Wind
DALLAS, Tex.—It looked mighty black for Don Pitch when a line snapped on his sailboat during a race. His sail came fluttering down.

But while he sweated to repair it a squall came up and capsized the other 14 boats.

Pitch sailed across the line a winner while lake police and boatmen rescued his rivals.
